NAZIS CLAIM OSTEND, LILLE

ALLIES RECAPTURE 3 TOWNS

PARIS, May 29 (AP) — The Allied armies of the north, fighting fiercely against odds, were reported today to be inflicting heavy casualties on German forces attempting to pinch them off, but their situation was acknowledged to be "very critical."

A "murderous" battle is raging in the Flanders pocket, a war ministry spokesman said, but he gave no indication of the turn the fight was taking. French and British troops were said to be displaying "admirable courage."

Along the front from the Somme to the Aisne the French armies of the center continued to consolidate their positions, and the situation there was described as "extremely favorable."

The high command announced that three villages south of the Somme had been recaptured from the Germans, indicating that the Nazis now held only two bridgeheads on the French side of the river.

An International News Service Paris dispatch said the fiercest rearguard action of modern warfare is progressing on the northern battlefront. French and British troops were retreating there to prepare positions in the face of German pressure increased vastly by capitulation of the Belgian army.

Today's communique said:

"Certain information enables it to be affirmed that losses sustained by the Germans during the fighting yesterday and last night were particularly heavy."—Editor's Note

STILL HOLD CALAIS

The Germans originally established bridgeheads on the south side of the Somme at five points when they drove across the stream to occupy Amiens. The principal portion of the city is said to be now in French hands.

A German raid on French positions in the Ardennes sector near the little town of Chateau Porcien was thrown back by heavy French fire, a communique said. The Maginot area to the east remained quiet.

Along the channel, it was said.

THE WAR TODAY—As French mobilized some 600,000 men at Rethel (southeast) for a counter-offensive against the Nazi war machine, Berlin announced mobile units had captured Ostend, Lille, Ypres and Mt. Kemmel, splitting a half million British and French troops now trapped in Flanders and Artois. The heavy dotted lines show the new fronts.

ITALY SET TO START WAR IN AFRICA AGAINST ALLIES

ROME, May 29 (AP)—Italy lingered tonight on the brink of war which many foreign and Italian observers expect Italy to start, possibly within the next few days, but in North Africa and the Mediterranean rather than against France directly.

This view was supported by Nicola Marchitto in a semi-monthly political review, entitled "The Conquest of Empire."

He asserted Italy's "offensive objectives" would be actions by the navy and warplanes in the Mediterranean, land and in Africa to conquer the Suez canal and eventually in the Balkans to protect Italian interests.

EFFECT OF BELGIUM'S ACT

Italian strategy, he wrote, is defensive on both the French and Tunisian (French North African) frontiers, but of a different character on the Egyption border.

Surrender of the Belgium army on the Western Front appeared to have ended any chance the Allies may have had to keep Italy out of the war by relaxing blockade restrictions.

Italy's war fervor heightened with the Belgian collapse, and active Italian intervention in the conflict seemed to many to be but a question of days.

Civilians began today to take over some of the posts left vacant by men called to arms and the government prepared to make many other such replacements in case a civil mobilization is put into effect.

Young Fascists served as traffic police and women and girls were seen in Rome in uniforms and helmets riding motorcycles equipped for air raid precaution duties.

WORKERS MOBILIZED

Government offices are prepared to substitute men called to arms with pensioned employes in event of civil mobilization. The pensioned men will be rehired with preferences being granted to fathers of large families, or with sons fighting.

A million and a half volunteers—women and minors enlisted through the Fascist party—are prepared to take over special jobs at a moment's notice. Many will be employed in the industries and agriculture to replace soldiers.

The party's plans for putting civilians to work cover a widespread network. Seamstresses will be put to work making uniforms. Women who know how to drive cars will be pressed into that line of work.

Party leaders estimated that a total of 10 million non-combatants soon would be functioning in what they called a second army.

SWEDISH SHIP SUNK

STOCKHOLM, May 29 (AP) — The Swedish steamer Torsten, 1204 tons, sank today after striking a mine in the Kattegat while en route to Goteborg. Her crew of 16 was saved.

BULLETIN

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—The speaker informed Commons today that special security measures were being instituted to safeguard the Houses of Parliament Hereafter, he said, passes will be required for all members and others with business in the houses.

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—Herbert Morrison, minister of supply, announced today that he had appointed a board headed by Sir Alexander Roger to increase Britain's production of tanks.

BERLIN, May 29 (AP) — The French industrial city of Lille and the Belgian channel port of Ostend have been seized, the German high command announced today.

An International News Service dispatch from Berlin said the Germans also had stormed Ypres of World War fame and Mt. Kemmel, nearby. — Editor's Note.

The British expeditionary force is facing destruction and an important segment of the French line has collapsed, the high command said, adding that its legions circled for the kill in the Flanders-Artois trap.

Germans declared counter-attacks to crack the steel jaws of the trap on Allied armies, estimated in Berlin at 700,000 men, had been beaten off "with the bloodiest losses."

Dunkirk, one of the next targets for the Germans smashing along the coast, was reported by fliers to have been burning for three days. There were unofficial advices fighting raged in Dunkirk's streets.

With their strategic position improved tremendously by capitulation of the 300,000-man Belgian army on orders from King Leopold

British Retreating To Escape Pincers; Allies Take Narvik

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—Undaunted by 19 days of steady action, the British Expeditionary Force began a movement from Flanders toward the English Channel today in a desperate attempt to get through the steel jaws of a closing German trap.

Military circles declared the British Expeditionary Force — aided by French units fighting with it—had started pushing under a stiff rear-guard attack toward the channel, as word reached London of an Allied success in Norway—the taking of Narvik, Norwegian ore port, together with Fagerns and Forneset, nearby towns.

Victims of ruthless German bombings from the air, crumpled and lifeless bodies of refugees lie outside shattered doorway after Red Cross haven somewhere in Belgium was blasted to ruins.

News of the Day Newsreel Photo From International News Service

Military circles refused to give the position of the British troops, whose fight to reach the channel was made more perilous by the Belgian capitulation which opened the way to a swift Nazi attack on Dunkirk.

Neutral military observers said the desperate situation of the pocketed B. E. F. and French forces could be relieved only by mechanized agencies equal to Germany's.

The port was reported still in Allied hands as the British, undergoing a heavy shelling, bombing and machine gunning but "fighting as a unit," dropped back.

The fall of Narvik was officially reported in the communique.

MORE BOOTY FOR NAZIS

In a broadcast to the nation, Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, said grimly last night it would be "necessary to withdraw our army from the positions they now occupy" as a result of surrender of King Leopold and his Belgian army.

How this withdrawal would be effected—whether it would be a break-through to join the French armies or a removal by sea such as the British navy carried out for smaller forces at Boulogne—was not immediately apparent.

Military commentators agreed that a large amount of equipment was bound to fall into the hands of the Germans no matter which course was followed, since saving the soldiers' lives would be the first consideration.

A gloomy nation was told the B. E. F. was in peril as grave as that of the British who met disaster at Gallipoli in the World War, when the Allies were routed

LINDBERGH JERSEY HOME GIVEN STATE

TRENTON, N. J., May 29 (AP)—Governor A. Harry Moore said today Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had offered to New Jersey as a gift the home at Hopewell from which the infant Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped March 1, 1932.

The governor said he was "all in favor" of the State accepting, and added he was so advising Lindbergh.

Moore suggested the big gabled white house, once occupied by the flier and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, could be converted into a State children's home.

The property includes about 382 acres stretching across the top of Sourland mountain. The home was built in 1931 at a reported cost of $50,000.

The Lindbergs, who left the estate a few months after their 20-month-old son was whisked from his nursery, have visited the site infrequently since the tragedy.

Acceptance would require legislative approval.

Dr. Leary to Battle Against Retirement

With mysterious undercurrents, a stern battle to prevent his being retired involuntarily on Friday was launched today by Dr. Timothy Leary, veteran medical examiner of the Southern Suffolk district and one of the most noted pathologists in the nation.

Although he has not applied for retirement, the Boston Retirement Board has placed his name among those to be placed on the pension roll at the end of the month. He was 70 on May 10.

Asserting today, however, that he is the head of a department and thus does not come under the compulsory retirement provisions, Dr. Leary retained the law firm of Hurlburt, Jones & Hall as counsel.

PLANS COURT FIGHT

Atty. Philip Jones was granted a temporary injunction by Judge Raoul Beaudreau in Superior court restraining the retirement board from taking any action against Dr. Leary at least until June 4 when a hearing will be held.

Dr. Leary contends he is a department head and as such is not subject to the board's rulings.

In announcing this move, Medical Examiner Leary, noted for his research work and successes in bacteriology and pathology, said:

"If I am not a department head, who on the payroll is. I employ workers and I accept full responsibility for my own actions and for the activities of my office.

"The mayor looks upon me as the head of a department, as does the district attorney."

Gov. Saltonstall today stated that he will take no action relative to the proposed retirement of Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner for Suffolk County, "until it is clear to me that the city retirement board is correct in its interpretation of the law."

Boy Drowns In Charles River

Spilled from a home-made boat, one unidentified boy was drowned today in the Charles river, off Pleasant st. beach, Watertown, while another, swimming ashore, gave the alarm and then vanished.

Word of the drowning spread along the Newton and Watertown shores, causing excitement among mothers, many of whom ran along the streets calling the names of their sons.

Four boats dragged the river in the area where the craft capsized with the boys, but after several hours the body had not been located.

Faneuil Hall Graft Set at $250,000

Graft totaling more than a quarter of a million dollars has been exacted in the Faneuil Hall Market district for marketing privileges, the district attorney's office was told today.

The information was given by one of four witnesses, all connected with market activities, who appeared voluntarily for questioning before Asst. Dist.-Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, his aide, George McGunigle, and a department stenographer.

Another of the witnesses is understood to have told the probers he lied in his testimony before the Finance Commission when he denied as earlier statement that one man had been forced to pay a bribe of $1500 for a market stall.

Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley has had Police Commr. Timilty assign a lieutenant and a special officer to the probe.

FARMERS ARE VICTIMS

It has been learned that the market racket does not involve solely a matter of graft collections from individuals but that the big money has come through a commission merchants' racket.

Through a clique that has been operating in the market for about five years, farmers coming in with their produce are forced to sell at unfair prices, and if they refuse to let go at such prices they are "positioned out."

Witnesses, it is understood, have given information to the district attorney's investigators that at least three firms, one in the market for more than 50 years, the two others more than 30 years, have been refused renewals in recent years.

OWNERS SQUEEZED OUT

Although the names of these firm members still appear on the locations, the original owners have been squeezed out of their possessions and are on small weekly salaries instead of operating the places they built up and made successful.

The market probe has resulted from many complaints by constituents of State Sen. Joseph A. Langone and City Councilor James J. Coffey, and both Langone and Coffey have been active daily in the investigation.

HUB TEACHER RUNS AMOK, COLLAPSES

Suddenly becoming violent today while talking with a brother, Thomas Minton, 31-year-old Boston school teacher, created a furore in Stella rd., Hyde Park, by throwing scores of articles from windows of his home.

Nearly every window in the first floor apartment in Stella rd. was shattered as ash trays, perfume bottles, paper weights, books and other articles crashed through.

DROPS IN COLLAPSE

Meanwhile Minton's brother, John Minton, endeavored vainly to reason with Thomas, a teacher at the James Timilty school in Eliot sq., Roxbury.

John said that, in a rage, his brother ordered him out of the house and he left and called police, who responded with the fire department. John, who had returned the house, ran out to meet them.

POLICE ARE CALLED

Meanwhile neighbors, alarmed at the disturbance in the Minton home and seeing articles flying through the windows, had also telephoned police.

John went back into the house and attempted to talk again with his brother who by then, police said, had poured oil on the rugs and attempted to set fire.

While the brother was talking with Minton, three officers slipped in the rear door and Patrolman Theodore Lenz discharged a tear gas billy.

Minton, police said, cried:

"Well, all right."

Then he collapsed.

Just then, Mrs. Gertrude M. Minton, who had gone out to a store after the two children, Thomas, Jr., and Carol, had started for school, arrived back at the house.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

In another automobile, she followed the police car that took Minton to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

Minton, son of former Election Commr. John M. Minton, has displayed no previous signs of nervousness, his wife and brother told police, but had been suffering for some time with insomnia.

Last night, John Minton was a visitor, and when Thomas said he could not sleep, the brother remained all night, both staying up into the early hours talking.

Minton was graduated from Harvard in 1929 and has been taking special courses there for a Ph.D. He has been a teacher for two years at the Timilty School, where he was school fire commissioner and in charge of Boy Scouts activities, as well as a teacher of Latin and mathematics.

"He's the finest of men from every point of view," declared Timilty's principal, John J. Connelly. "I couldn't say too much in favor of Tom Minton."

Wife of Chief Justice Higgins Dies

Mrs. Eleanor G. Higgins, wife of Chief Justice John P. Higgins of the Massachusetts Superior Court, died today in her sleep at the Higgins home, 263 Pond st., Jamaica Plain.

She had just returned from a two weeks' stay at Faulkner Hospital and was believed to have been successfully convalescing.

Mrs. Higgins was the former Eleanor McNamara of Swampscott. She and Chief Justice Higgins, then a newly fledged member of the Massachusetts bar, were married in 1927.

One daughter, Eleanor, 11, survives her mother.

Mrs. Higgins was her husband's aid and adviser through his years in the Massachusetts Legislature, his service as Congressman from the 10th district and his rise to his present position on the Massachusetts bench.

Plans for the funeral were not completed today.

Congress Weighing Defense Tax Plans

WASHINGTON, May 29—The defense program hit the "brass tacks" stage on two fresh essentials today:

1—Congress buckled down to the admittedly thorny problem of raising $683,000,000 a year in new taxes and of borrowing more money for the $3,000,000,000 preparedness bill.

2—A Presidential commission of seven—the general staff appointed to muster the country's vast economic resources—converged on the Capital to start the wheels of armaments production spinning at top speed.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, reported that President Roosevelt would supplement his $1,182,000,000 emergency defense program already moving through Congress with a request for additional funds for the army.

CALLS PARLEY

President Roosevelt called in secretaries Morgenthau and Woodring; Louis Johnson, assistant war secretary, and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, to consider the supplemental estimates today.

The legislative blueprinting of defense details continued apace, the House dispatching to the Senate a brace of newly-approved bills designed to speed up shipbuilding and to authorize a $1,137,000,000 expansion of the Navy's air force and air bases. Rep. Marcantonio (AL) of New York, cast the only vote against them.

Tentative plans for financing the national defense program call for an annual boost of $683,000,000 in income and excise taxes for the next five years. The financing would work out this way:

The statutory national debt limit would be increased by $3,000,000,000, permitting that amount to be borrowed exclusively for defense expenditures. This borrowed money would be paid back in five years.

PROPOSED TAXES

New taxes, yielding the estimated $683,000,000, would be used to pay back the $3,000,000,000 borrowed. Their life, accordingly, would be limited to five years. The proposed new taxes and their estimated yields:

Incomes (both individual and corporate): A flat ten per cent tax on the amount now paid in taxes. Yield: $210,000,000. (This a person whose present tax is $40 would pay $44, the new rate to be effective for incomes received in 1940.)

Gasoline: 1½ cents a gallon instead of the present 1 cent federal levy. Yield: $100,000,000.

Beer: $6 a barrel instead of $5. Yield: $58,000,000.

Liquor: $3 a gallon instead of $2.25. Yield: $85,000,000.

Cigarettes: $3.50 a thousand instead of $3. Yield: $70,000,000.

Tires and tubes, toilet preparations, automobiles, radios, mechanical refrigerators, firearms and ammunition, matches, electrical energy, lubricating oil, copper, petroleum, coal, telephone and telegraph tolls, playing cards and tobacco other than cigarettes: A flat 10 per cent increase in present taxes. Yield: $160,000,000.

As finance committees in both Houses began spadework on the tax question, the seven members named by President Roosevelt yesterday to form a national defense commission were asked to hold their first meeting here tomorrow.

SEVEN LEADERS MEMBERS

The commission is constituted as follows:

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman of the board of United States Steel, who will supervise the production of raw materials.

William S. Knudsen, the General Motors production wizard, who will be concerned exclusively with manufacturing problems.

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, responsible for matters involving labor.

Chester C. Davis, member of the Federal Reserve Board and former director of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, who will integrate the farmer's part.

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, the transportation specialist.

Miss Harriet Elliott of the University of North Carolina, guardian of consumer interests.

PARACHUTISTS IN LONDON . . . AS PRISONERS—Captured in fighting in Belgium, two German parachutists are searched by British military police on arrival in London.

FORD VISIONS 1000 PLANES A DAY

DETROIT, May 29 (AP)—Henry Ford, life-long opponent of war in any form, said that, much as he hated war, "if it became necessary, the Ford Motor Company could—with the counsel of men like Lindberg and Rickenbacker, under our own supervision and without meddling by government agencies—swing into the production of a thousand airplanes of standard design a day."

It would take about six months under those conditions, he said in an interview, to reach that level of production.

"Of course," he emphasized, "they would have to be of standard design. Equally important would be freedom of action on our own part, so that we would not have the handicaps of red tape that slowed down production during the World War."

It was suggested to Ford that "a thousand planes a day is an enormous volume of production."

"So was 10,000 motorcars a day, but we did it; so was the production of one Eagle boat a day during the World War, but we did it. Incidentally, we would have reached the level of one submarine chaser a day much sooner but for a certain amount of red tape that had to be contended with."

"Still, planes present a different problem," the interviewer persisted.

"How?" Ford asked.

"Well, we don't know as much about planes as we do about motorcars and farm tractors."

"That's exactly why I say we need the counsel of men who know aviation and that we must not be dictated by men who haven't kept up to date in airplane design and operation," came the reply. "The manufacture of airplanes—if agreement is had upon just what is wanted—becomes simply an assembly problem."

Of the proposals for an enormous "defensive armament" program, Ford said:

"One of the things we must remember is that preparedness for defense is also preparedness for war and, with tremendous so-called 'defensive armament,' we are in just the position the warmakers want us to be, in order to be pushed into a conflict in which we should have no part—pushed in by an insidious middle group that are fighting neither Germany nor England, but getting them to fight each other solely that this group might profit financially.

"The real 'fifth columnists' in this country are these financial interests that make money out of war, propagate it and peddle propaganda."

Stocks Higher, Steels in Lead

NEW YORK, May 29 (AP)—Stocks, bonds and commodities advanced today as Wall Street took a deep breath and relaxed from two weeks' intense war-inspired activity.

Leading issues were up about $2 a share, but volume was so meager it appeared the main action was due to traders adjusting their accounts.

Steels led the rise, on the basis of increased production to meet military demands. Confidence was aided by the manner in which prices held yesterday despite Belgium's surrender.

Among the higher issues were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Caterpillar, Sperry, Lockhead, Eastman, American Can, duPont, Allied Chemical, American Telephone and Great Northern preferred.

Bonds moved ahead. Commodities generally gained, with wool tops, hides and rubber leading the movement. Wheat and cotton improved.

"Lower Away"

The fishing banks of the North Atlantic cover hundreds of square miles of ocean. Yet the skippers who sail the 40-Fathom fleet of 19 trawlers seem to know the ocean bottom as well as you know your own street. They know just where and when to start trawling.

All successful captains have this "sixth sense." It is hard to explain — but real enough to the thousands of workers ashore who depend for their livelihood on what the trawlers bring in. And dependable enough to account for an average of over seven million pounds of fresh fish landed each month by the 40-Fathom fleet.

Berlin Lays Claim To Ostend and Lille

III, the Germans reported the following new successes:

Passing of Bergues and the reaching of Dixmude, both in Belgium, by the swift advance through northern Flanders;

Raising of the the swastika over Langemarck, scene of fierce combat in 1914;

Occupation of Armentieres, near Lille;

Fracture of a fortified French border position, near Cassel, through a rear guard attack;

Widespread air raids on "retreating columns and all kinds of troop concentrations and tanks;

Destruction of 24 Allied planes Yesterday as against the loss of three German machines;

Storming of Ypres, Belgian highway center, 20 miles from the coast between Dunkirk and Ostend.

Simultaneous attack on Kemmel, southeast of Ypres. Both Ypres and Kemmel were maelstroms of World War fighting.

Destruction of an Allied destroyer by a torpedo-carrying speedboat off the Belgian city of Nieuport;

Heavy damage to three Allied destroyers, two transports and two freighters, bombed off the Belgian and French coast of the English channel, and Sinking of an Allied submarine by bomb in the central North sea and "probable" destruction of another.

ADMIT NARVIK'S FALL

The Germans acknowledged Allied forces had entered Narvik, Norwegian ore port, which had been besieged since the April 9 invasion of Norway.

But the Germans said there air force had scored a "serious hit" on a "large battleship" off Narvik, putting its guns out of action and enveloping the craft in smoke, and heavily damaged three cruisers, a destroyer and a freighter.

Troop landings at Ankanes, Norway, also were bombed.

The high command said "the fate of the French armies in Artois is sealed."

The Artois region and the Flanders area form the zone of entrapment for the Allied forces, now bereft of Belgian aid in the Ostend-Bruges area on their left bank.

SAY FRENCH COLLAPSE

French resistance south of Lille has "collapsed," said the Germans and "the English army which was hemmed together in the region of Dixmude, Armentieres, Bailleul and Bergues, west of Dunkirk, also is facing destruction through our concentrated attack."

ALLIES TAKE 3 TOWNS, BLAST AT NAZI LINES

Dunkirk itself "is not directly menaced."

Calais was also still in French hands at the latest reports last night, the sources added.

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak said he was "completely without information" on the whereabouts of King Leopold III following the Belgian monarch's capitulation.

KING'S PEACE VOID

"Wherever he is," Spaak declared, "he no longer has any power."

Spaak said Leopold lost his sovereignty and that if he should conclude a peace treaty with the Germans it would not be valid "because we consider that any act he can accomplish now will be invalid."

The British and French air forces violently attacked fuel reserves at the north German ports of Bremen and Hamburg, as well as communication centers and armored columns behind the German lines.

Fighting in the northern sector was described as "extremely violent" on the Lys river, which runs through the area in which the Allied forces have been encircled by the swift German troops and left alone by the surrender of King Leopold's Belgian army.

ARTILLERY BARRAGE

Along the Rhine the French opened a terrific artillery fire which shattered a railway line and an unidentified station, the spokesman said.

German troops were said to have been repulsed "without difficulty" when they struck at the French forces along the Aisne in the vicinity of Chateau Porcien.

The high command communique said that the Germans were "thrown back" at this village, which lies on the river five miles west of Rethel, which for about a week has been the southern point of the German drive in this region.

The battle lines of the almost encircled Allied army of the north were reported to be changing almost hourly today as superior German forces swept over ground abandoned by 15 Belgian divisions which capitulated yesterday on orders of their King.

German forces were reported blasting away with long-range guns at Dunkirk, channel port through which the Allies have been servicing their pocketed forces in Flanders.

French forces said, however, that more than 30 miles of channel coast, stretching northward from Dunkirk, still remained in Allied hands and asserted that the pocketed troops were continuing to fight with "determination."

There were unofficial reports that at least 30 divisions, numbering between 450,000 and 640,000 men, were ready for a sustained drive along the Aisne.

BRITISH RETREAT FOR SEA

by the Turks in a catastrophic failure to establish a line of communication into the Black Sea.

The British morning press pulled no punches in telling the public of the dark picture and in denouncing the young Belgian monarch as a traitor for his capitulation against the advice of his government.

In the midst of the press denunciation of Leopold, however, both Prime Minister Churchill and his minister of information asked the people to suspend judgment, and today Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, who as a special British liaison officer was with Leopold until late Monday night, issued a statement hinting there were certain important facts attending the surrender that were not yet generally known.

HERO DEFENDS LEOPOLD

Sir Roger, a World War naval hero, was appointed to Brussels early this month after criticizing the Chamberlain government for lack of initiative in the Norwegian campaign. His statement today said:

"Some very hard things have been said in this country and France about the action taken by King Leopold in bringing about the cessation of hostilities in the part of Belgium occupied by his troops. I trust judgment will be suspended on a very gallant soldier until all the facts are known."

The bitterest denunciation came from the tabloid Mirror, which cartooned Leopold as a crowned serpent with the caption: "Gentlemen, the King!" and described him in an editorial as a "skunk."

The Press was blunt in its treatment of the precarious situation of the B. E. F., and the News Chronicle's military correspondent said:

"It is time to face up to the facts, to await the worst. With the surrender of the Belgian army the B. E. F. would seem to be cut off. Escape by sea is the slenderest of hopes. A breakthrough to the south is a possibility equally remote.

"Within the steel ring of the Reichswehr are as many men as we lost in the battle of the Somme and as much war material as we abandoned to the Germans in March, 1918.

"The magnitude and gravity of this disaster need no elaboration . . ."

In the first battle of the Somme, in the summer of 1916, the British lost 500,000 officers and men. In the second, in the spring of 1918, they lost 200,000.—Editor's Note.

Leopold's surrender, it was said here, failed to affect the status of the Belgian Congo, Belgian colonial possession in Africa, since the Belgian government had repudiated the king and declared its intention of pursuing the war.

HENRY — Appearances Are Deceiving

Golden Rule Tenet Of Typical Families

Home life with the Golden Rule predominant has been cited as a principal attribute by several contestants in the contest to select the Typical American Family in Massachusetts.

This is not, of course, the only quality set forth in the entries submitted, but it is a hint. Naturally, it would not be fair to reveal much of the reasons given why these entrant families believe they are qualified for the selection.

Two and one-half weeks are all that remain for entries in this contest, sponsored by the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser in cooperation with the New York World's Fair of 1940.

DEADLINE JUNE 15

The deadline is midnight of Saturday, June 15, so it behooves families that have not yet entered to get stirring with that letter of not more than 300 words, to be submitted with the family photograph and the official entry form.

Remember—the first prize is an all-expense-paid trip to the World's Fair during the week of July 22, with not one cent to be laid out by the Typical Family, not even for transportation, housing or meals.

The Massachusetts family, while at the Fair, will occupy one of the two newly-built FHA model houses, both of which have been completely furnished by Sears, Roebuck & Co. And before leaving on the exciting trip, the family will be completely outfitted by Sears, Roebuck.

It's the chance of a lifetime to see the greatest exposition ever devised and executed—and with everything free.

Elsewhere in these columns the simple rules of the contest are printed. Study them. They are simple—with nothing to buy, nothing to sell, and no strings.

FOUR OTHER PRIZES

Remember, too—in addition to the principal award to the winning family, there are four other World's Fair prizes for the next four families picked as runners-up:

Second prize: Free transportation, round trip, between Boston and New York via New Haven Railroad; free admission to the Fair for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $40.

Third prize: Free transportation via American Airlines; free admission for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $30.

Fourth prize: Free transportation, via Eastern Steamship Lines, cabin and meals free; free admission to the Fair for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $20.

Fifth prize: Free transportation, via New Haven Railroad, between Boston and Providence, and Colonial Steamship Lines between Providence and New York; free cabin and meals; plus free admission for three days, free entertainment, free guides and $20 cash.

FOSTER-MOTHER WINS GIRL IN SUIT

SALEM, May 29—Faced with a choice between living with her foster-mother or with her real mother, whom she had seen only once in 14 years, a 17-year-old Lynn high school girl won her plea in probate court today to remain under the care of the foster-mother.

The girl, Frances E. Putzel, expressed her choice to Judge John V. Phelan after had called her into his lobby for questioning.

The hearing involving the girl's future was on a petition brought by the foster-mother, Mrs. Annie Crowell of Jackson st., Lynn, seeking permanent custody of Frances. The petition was opposed by the real mother, Mrs. Marion Putzel Richmond of Essex st., Lynn, who declared she yearned for the companionship and love of her daughter.

MOTHERS' STORIES

Mrs. Crowell testified she had cared for Frances since 1926, when the 3-year-old child was brought to her by the mother to board and lodge. Mrs. Crowell said she took care of Frances for 14 years, and during that time received only $50 from the mother.

The mother, Mrs. Crowell said, went to California in 1929, and from that time until last Easter sent only one postcard to her daughter. At Easter, the foster-mother said, Mrs. Richmond visited her home and a few weeks later communicated with her through a lawyer.

Mrs. Richmond, on the stand, said she opposed Mrs. Crowell's petition, not through spite or hatred, but because she longed for her daughter's companionship. She testified Mrs. Crowell had aliented Frances from her and that Francis had assumed the name Crowell.

GIRL MAKES CHOICE

Mrs. Richmond said she wished to take her daughter to Pittsfield, where she planned a permanent home for her.

It was at this point Judge Phelan halted the hearing and asked to question Frances in his chambers. After a 15-minute conference the girl returned tearfully to the courtroom.

Judge Phelan then signed the petition granting guardianship to Mrs. Crowell.

Frances left the courtroom with her foster-mother, he face averted from her real mother, to whom she had not spoken during the hearing.

Girl Killed, 5 Hurt in Auto Crash

A Somerville girl was killed and five other persons injured today in a crash of two autos in Bridge st., Cambridge, near Lechmere sq.

Edith Hamilton, 25, of Bigelow st., Somerville, riding with Charles Taylor, 23, of Mystic ave., Arlington, according to police, suffered a fractured skull and died shortly after admittance to Cambridge City Hospital.

Placed on the danger list at the same hospital with a skull fracture was Nicholas Bucci, 25, of Second st., Medford, who police said was a passenger in a machine operated by Timothy J. Miller, 25, also of Second st., Medford.

Frank Campbell, 27, of Coolidge rd., Belmont, suffered two fractured ribs, and Augustino Mandero, 24, of Mystic ave., Arlington, received cuts and abrasions.

Cambridge Firm Wins Long Island Contract

Lowest of 11 bidders, the Platt Construction Co., of Cambridge, was awarded a $160,000 contract today by Mayor Tobin for construction of a new brick dormitory at Long Island Hospital to house 300 male patients.

The city was forced to erect the dormitory because the U. S. Army has asked return of two buildings previously loaned the city. The latter property will be used by the government to house increased personnel as result of President Roosevelt's rearmament program.

HOLIDAY PREMIERE FOR 'WATERLOO BRIDGE' AT LOEW'S

Vivien Leigh, Robert Taylor Co-Star in M-G-M Drama

"Waterloo Bridge," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen drama of the Robert E. Sherwood play, brings Vivien Leigh back to Loew's State and Orpheum screens tomorrow in her first American film since "Gone With the Wind." Her co-star is Robert Taylor—plus a mustache.

There has been one unanimous paen of praise from the New York critics for Miss Leigh's performance which must needs be remarkable to have escaped being completely overshadowed by her brilliant acting achievement in GWTW.

Nor have these same critics been remiss in acknowledging Taylor's talents in "Waterloo Bridge," the Journal-American's Rose Pelswick terming him "dashingly romantic" and the acting combination, "a glamorous co-starring team." Kate Cameron of the Daily News also agrees they are "well-matched," and the Post's Archer Winston hails Taylor in his "best performance."

"Waterloo Bridge" is the story of a shy young ballet dancer who falls in love with a dashing British officer on leave at the outset of the World War, becomes a street-walker when she gets false news of his death, finally chooses to do away with herself rather than dishonor him.

The Sherwood play was originally produced in New York in January, 1940, with June Walker and Glenn Hunter in the leading roles. It was made into a screen play the following year with Mae Clarke and Kent Douglas (Douglas Montgomery) in the roles now played by Miss Leigh and Taylor. Bette Davis had a small part in this first screen version of "Waterloo Bridge."

Marlene Tops Globe's Star Parade on Friday

MARLENE, the modern Godiva of the burlesque stage, brings her TNT dance routine to the Globe stage on Friday.

Bevy of Beauties In New Show

Marlene, the lady known as the modern Godiva along the burlesque circuit, takes the anti-climax out of the post-holiday week-end at the Globe.

With a mane of molten gold that would do credit to a Sutherland sister, a Hollywood chassis and a TNT dance routine, Marlene, who opens at the Washington st. burlesque house on Friday, promises to be one of the season's sensations.

The Porto Rican bombshell, Clara Scott, is another eye-popping charmer to be seen in the new stage show. Making the bill a triple-threat proposition will be Lillian Harrison, Brazilian burlesque queen who is remaining a second week. Starting Friday, she will offer for the first time in Boston her new Soamer-Soafric Zombie dance—only one to an audience. Loney Leigh and the 30 Bernardolls are other alluring members of the cast.

Topping the comedy contingent will be Charles "Red" Marshall, Mandy Kay, Harry Ryan, Irving Benson and Milton Frome. Vaudeville will be represented by the Six Men of Melody with Julie Starr, the Dashing Doherty Dancers and the Mad Malones.

"Sutter's Gold" and "Midnight Intruder" will be the screen attractions.

Rose La Rose and Miss Harrison will be the starred performers in tonight's super-special holiday eve show, starting at 11:30 p. m. Added features will be introduced and altogether the midnight show promises to be a gala affair.

Tomorrow night's final performance, with its accompanying radio contest for amateurs will wind up this week's revue.

Gang Film for Trans-Lux

Republic assembled an interesting cast for "Gangs of Chicago," screen melodrama due at the Trans-Lux Theater on Friday.

Lloyd Nolan, most recently seen in "Johnny Apollo" and "The House Across the Bay," and one of the screen's most competent performers, is co-starred with Lola Lane, of the lovely Lane sisters and one of the popular "Four Lighters," and Barton MacLane, keen "heavy" of many screen successes.

Heading the supporting cast are Astrid Allwyn, Ray Middleton, Horace MacMahon and Addison Richards.

Nolan is cast as a brilliant young leader whose ambition causes him to become the leader of a vast crime organization and "Gangs of Chicago" is the story of his regeneration. Barton MacLane is a two-fisted, hard-headed racketeer who shares the gang leadership with Nolan.

The co-feature, "It's Love I'm After," is a second-run, a comedy co-starring Bette Davis, Leslie Howard and Olivia DeHavilland.

Hollywood Paragraphs

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons, Who Is on Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, May 29—David Niven, who is with his regiment in England, has just written his good friend and countryman, Nigel Bruce, that he has been requested to go to France and do a propaganda picture with Leslie Howard and Danielle Darrieux.

Said David: "In the light of the advice I received from my commanding officer there is no doubt I will accept." He went on to explain that his superior had advised him grimly: "Go ahead and do it—it will probably mean three more months of life for you."

Jawn Barrymore has fallen heir to Shirley Temple's bungalow on the 20th Century-Fox lot, and when photographers went over to make stills of him in his new quarters they found the great profile gleefully swinging in Shirley's swing.

Incidentally, the juvenile role in the Barrymore opus has just been handed to John Payne, who, I'm told, does a grand job in "Maryland." Nice that the breaks are coming young Payne's way just at this time as he and wife Anne Shirley are expecting their baby next month. To hark back to Jawn the Barrymore—his gal friend Elaine Barrie, is now a flaming red head. Never a dull moment in that family.

You Can Be Beautiful

Beauty Balm Simulates Luxurious Tan

By ARLINE GOULD

WHETHER it rains or shines through the next few weeks that are supposed to be an introduction to summer . . . you should care! You may have the healthily bronzed look of someone who's just come back from a Cuban jaunt by using a wonderful "bronze balm" . . . which is a superb tan-tinting make-up and youth-fostering foundation which zealously protects your skin from every element!

It's a knockout for the girls whose skin never tans, or for those with such sensitive skin that a deep sun-tan tears down its softness and carves age lines where none actually belong . . . and as for faking the luxurious bronzed look . . . there's nothing better.

In the beginning it is intrinsically different from an ordinary make-up that imitates a tan, because it started life as balm, a thin, creamy liquid, for fragile complexions, in the form of a moisture-saving foundation for make-up. In it are exclusive ingredients to keep the skin soft and pliable and protect it from wrinkles . . . without overlaying it with an oily shine to boot. It gives a stunning moist look, exactly like the natural sheen of a child's skin.

Then . . . the bronze ingredients were added . . . there is a "light tan," a milk and honey shade, and the "dark tan" which . . . If you use enough, will almost turn you into a second cousin of Pocahontas, for you'll have a stunning coppery glow. This is not in any way a sun-preventive, by the way. It's solely to give you a healthy, beautiful sun-touched look, with a sleek, smooth complexion . . . dulled to a mat glow by powder, or naturally moist and childishly fresh without powder.

If you'd like to learn all about this exclusive, complexion-protecting "bronze balm" make-up, or foundation for make-up . . . a thin, creamy liquid . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays, except the holiday or Saturdays until 5:30; or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IT'S ALMOST a must to look like a lady of the tropics in some of the exciting, bizarrely patterned and colored new fashions . . . anything from bathing suit to informal dinner pajama set like Brenda Marshall's . . . and if you want the fun and complexion-glorifying tints of a tan without going out into the sun for it . . . learn about an amazing complexion balm that tints you bronze or milk-and-honey, and makes your skin more silken and beautiful than before!

Salads Are Always Popular

By MARTHA LEE

SALAD DAYS are here again! Crisp greens from the delicate inner leaves of lettuce and pale green of endive to the dark watercress, or outer leaves of head lettuce, make lovely backgrounds for colorful combinations of vegetables with eggs to make a meal-type salad.

Sparkling and beguiling too are stuffed eggs fitted into crisp ice-cold cups made of thick slices of cucumber. Score the peeled slices with a fork, and scoop out their insides.

HEARTY SALADS

Here is a rather hearty luncheon or supper salad which can form the main dish of the meal. Combine kidney beans with chopped pickles and a few chopped walnuts. Pile on lettuce and surround with wedges of hard-cooked eggs—plenty of them—and serve with mayonnaise.

Another combination is composed of celery, green peas, and a few shrimps with the hard-cooked eggs cut in slices crosswise or eighths cut lengthwise.

Eggs are low in price, they are plentiful and most important, they are a nutritious, protective food. Serve them often, and right now enjoy them frequently in delicious salads. Add some crisp hot rolls and a milk drink for a grand meal.

STUFFED EGGS

Hard-cook as many eggs as you think you will need. Cut in halves crosswise. Mash the yolks to a creaminess with mayonnaise. Add a bit of lemon juice and just a hint of anchovy paste. Refill the whites and sprinkle a bit of chopped chives on top. Serve in the cucumber cups.

DEVILLED EGGS

Cut six hard-cooked eggs in half, remove yolks and mash. Season with ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard and 1 teaspoon vinegar. Work to a smooth paste with 4 tablespoons cream or 3 tablespoons melted butter. Fill the egg whites, top the halves with sliced stuffed olives and sprinkle lightly with paprika. Serve on crisp greens and garnish with wedges of tomato.

EGGS IN TOMATO ASPIC

1 quart cooked tomatoes
1 tbsp. granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 onion, sliced
3 cloves
1 sprig parsley
1 blade mace
1 tbsp. chopped green pepper
1 cup diced celery
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. peppercorns
½ cup raw carrot, sliced
Devilled eggs

Simmer tomatoes with seasonings and vegetables for 15 to 20 minutes. Strain, pour over gelatin which has been soaked in cold water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Pour enough in a flat pan to cover the bottom, add a layer of sliced stuffed or devilled eggs and cover with remaining gelatin mixture. Chill. Slice and serve on crisp lettuce.

STUFFED EGG SALAD

Shredded lettuce
French dressing
1 recipe stuffed eggs
6 stuffed olives, sliced
Mayonnaise

Arrange lettuce on salad platter and sprinkle with French dressing. Garnish devilled egg halves with overlapping slices of stuffed olives and place on lettuce. Pass mayonnaise. Makes 6 servings.

Eyebrow Hats Arrive

By ANNICE BRINK

PREPARE to meet the love of your life . . . in a new hat! It's the hat we refer to, just to keep things straight in your mind . . . though it might easily work both ways, since the new eyebrow hats are as feminine as any swooning Victorian heroine the Brontes immortalized.

They . . . the new eyebrow hats are worn almost straight on the head . . . and are the forerunners of a new era of back-of-the-head covering hats . . . more than a straw in the wind, to show the way millinery fashions are blowing.

They are, in effect, cap-like in the back, though not fitted as closely as a calot. They would have no top or no front, were it not for the trimming . . . and the trimming is what makes them. For it continues the flower and ribbon furore. A ribbon-tied garland is posed smack on top of the head, with the flowers in a forward and downward position that reminds you of those curly loose forehead fringes the Victorians loved.

You will in all certainty need a nape-of-the-neck fringe of ringlets or a roll of hair, not too long, to curl from under the hat in back. You'll have a wonderful feeling of "hatness"; a covering that's not apt to be disturbed by errant winds. And a great change from the bands that have so far held down the discs and sailors that passed for hats.

As the season opens, you'll these bands changed . . . widened . . . added-to, so that almost no hair shows except the curls at the nape of the neck. It's a promise.

Love And Marriage

Again, Eternal Triangle

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It's a case of a man, his wife and the other woman. I am the other woman. The husband and wife do not love each other, but the husband does love his children, and for that reason hesitates to break up the home and marry me.

I am 27, and have been divorced for five years. My little son lives with my mother. His father pays a very liberal sum for his board, but pride keeps me from taking any of that. My mother wants me to go back to my husband, but I don't love him.

We are all under 30 years of age, and I suppose all of us feel entitled to a little happiness—all of us, that is, except the man's wife, who has no love affairs. She is one of those quiet, mouse-like type of woman and is contented to drift along even though she knows her husband doesn't care for her.

THE OTHER WOMAN.

Very likely all of us do feel entitled to happiness, but the question is are we going to take it at someone's else expense? The wife probably gets scant happiness in realizing her husband is untrue to her, but she know she's doing the right thing by maintaining a home for her children.

You are contented to let your son grow up apart from you, so it would seem you have not the maternal instinct of the "mousey" lady. There is also the big "IF" that the husband because of his children does not wish to break up his home and marry you. It seems to me you'll be wise to find your happiness somewhere outside of this husband and father.

COMING EVENTS cast their shadow before, and in this case it's a pretty long shadow, because Harvard 1916 grads are already laying plans for their 25th reunion in June, 1941 . . . It takes a lot of work and intricate planning to see that over a thousand grads and their wives and families are housed, fed and entertained during their four-day get-together in Harvard Yard . . . and with this in mind a number of prominent 16-ers presided at a pre-reunion dinner party at the Hotel Sheraton Roof this week . . .

On a rooftop vantage point, commanding an impressive view of the spires of famous Harvard buildings situated along the Charles River such well known Bostonians as Mr. and Mrs. F. HAAKON, MAN OF PEACE, ONE KING WHO BATTLES NAZIS

Betrayed Norse Leader Defies Hitler Might

By FRED PERKINS

Somewhere in northern Norway—somewhere in that harsh land where everlasting snow enshrouds mile-high Arctic peaks and the weird, pale glimmer of the midnight sun holds the long winter darkness at bay across lofty, glacier-cut barrens of the great Finmark plateau—a man as stern and gaunt and uncompromising as the narrowed realm he yet rules must be listening grim-faced today to the tragic war news coming to his ears over the short-wave radio.

The stern, gaunt man is King Haakon of Norway. He's the forgotten, twice-betrayed hero of the one minor nation which has refused, and is still refusing, to bow its neck to the Nazi yoke, to barter its independence and freedom for a Hitler blitzkrieg respite.

KURT VON SCHUSSNIGG
Vanished

Young King Leopold of the Belgians has chosen to surrender his birthright and the birthright of his people rather than further pay in blood and tears the awful price of trying to retain them.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, who once came within an ace of sharing her throne with Norway's present valiant monarch, has fled to England, leaving her peace-loving, industrious subjects to ruthless Nazi exploitation.

King Christian X of Denmark, Haakon's soldierly, pure-tree-tall elder brother, has accepted the inevitable with what wry grace he can muster.

Poland's government, with its gold, has sought shelter in Paris.

Sold down the river at Munich for Neville Chamberlain's senile day-dream of "peace in our time," stout-hearted Edouard Benes, president and "father" of the Czecho-Slovakian Republic, has gone sadly into exile to await in bitterness and disillusionment the slow swing of history's cycle to a future more propitious for democracy and tolerance.

AUSTRIA, TOO

Kurt von Schussnigg, last-ditch Austrian opponent of the Fifth Column Nazi anschluss, has long since been worsted in his hopeless war of anti-Hitler politics and intrigue and has vanished into the limbo of "protective custody."

Yet King Haakon—of them all—is still hanging on defiantly.

King Haakon is still defending a dismembered, a nearly prostrate, a ravaged but an unsurrendered Norway.

King Haakon, assailed by treachery, deserted by disloyal subordinates, is fighting the good fight, is finishing his course, is keeping the faith.

World interest has swung from Norway to the tremendous events now transpiring on the blood-drenched plains of Flanders and Picardy.

The clank and roar of Nazi mechanized columns, the thunder of French 75's, the scream of dive bombers swooping with their deadly cargoes has distracted American attention from King Haakon's lonely, Spartan stand.

However, when the history of this war, the history perhaps of the final fall of European democracy, is eventually written, it wouldn't be surprising to many behind-the-scenes observers if King Haakon's name was lettered large and high on the honor roll of freedom's battle leaders.

AMAZING ROLE

And the role he has played, is playing, in Norway's all but lost cause is the more amazing and the more heroic because of the seldom - remembered fact that Haakon VII is king of the Norwegians not by royal heritage but by legal adoption.

Married for love to the former Princess Maud of England, favorite daughter of the late King Edward VII and aunt of Britain's present King George VI, Haakon was plain Prince Carl of Denmark when Norway separated itself peacefully from Sweden in 1905 and "elected" him its ruler.

He took the name, Haakon (pronounced Hah-kawn), at the time of his coronation.

His son, born in England and christened Prince Alexander, became Crown Prince Olav of Norway.

The Norwegian capital, Christiania, became Oslo, as Swedish nomenclature and tradition were joyously scrapped.

Only Princess Maud, later Queen Maud, retained her earlier name. She died in 1938.

So far as scanty and heavily censored news dispatches indicate, Prince Olav must be with King Haakon today in his northern Norway war headquarters.

And Prince Olav, apparently, [illegible] must be accompanied by his royal consort, Princess Martha.

Boston met and highly approved them both when they visited this city in the summer of 1939, only a few short weeks before the outbreak of the present European conflict.

TRADE HANDY

And repeated here smilingly was the story of how young Olav, studying engineering as a schoolboy, told his father, also an engineering enthusiast:

"It will be handy to have a trade some day when I find myself out of a job."

The job Olav and his tall, spare, indomitable dad are facing at the present moment is one they may well not survive to look for other occupation.

Just how much of an army King Haakon commands is problematical at best. The office here of Norwegian Consul Egmne Ursin had no information today on Haakon's whereabouts or resources.

Said the consul's secretary [illegible]:

"We read the papers, just as you do. And we know as little as you what is going on."

I st guess of most military experts is that scattered remnants of a few badly decimated divisions are all that Haakon and Olav can possibly put in the field.

PERPETUAL SNOW

In open battle, these would fare badly against Nazi Germany's mechanized might.

But in northern Norway, where Haakon and his family have taken mysterious refuge, the very roughness and bareness of the terrain are all in the defenders' favor.

It's an area lying for the most part within the Arctic Circle. It would be buried deep under an eternal ice cap, like Greenland, except that its shores are warmed by the benevolent kiss of the Gulf Stream.

Its high interior plateau lands are ringed with shouldering mountains from 3000 to 6000 feet in altitude.

The snow never melts above the 3000-foot level in most sections of this northern country.

The forests are dense and wild, where there are any. The lofty plains are sparsely covered with coarse grass that feeds nomadic flocks.

But there's freedom there, there's unInvaded Norwegian soil. The Norwegian flag still flies there.

And Norway's king, unconquered, unintimidated, unpurchaseable, is still fighting there.

There must always have been a valuable toughness of fibre in Haakon's character.

On one side of his family, he inherited the wild blood of Viking forebears, the warlike spirit of the Norse and Danish raiders who ravaged the coasts of England, Germany, France and Russia a dozen centuries ago.

From his mother, six-foot-tall, matriarchal Crown Princess and later Queen Louise of Denmark, Haakon got a strain of Dutch stubbornness.

Herself of Dutch descent, Louise was determined her second son, Carl, now King Haakon, should better himself by marriage.

And the bride she picked for him was Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, then young and highly eligible.

MIND OF OWN

Princess Louise, reckoned the wealthiest royal personage in Europe, figured shrewdly her son, Carl, would share Wilhelmina's throne, not become merely her consort.

But Carl, later Haakon, had a mind of his own. And he fell madly in love with his first cousin, Maud, third and favorite daughter of England's Edward VII, then Prince of Wales.

In the face of his mother's bitter and influential opposition, Carl made Maud his bride.

Things got so bad finally that Princess Maud spent most of her time in England. Her first and only son, Alexander, now Olav, was born there at Sandringham.

She and her still loving and loyal husband, Prince Carl, cooked up a scheme by which Carl was to adjure his Danish citizenship, get Maud's dad, King Edward VII, to naturalize him as an English subject and accept a high ranking commission in the British navy.

This plan went so far toward fruition that it was announced in the press, and the British Parliament took it under consideration.

It finally fell through only through intervention of old King Christian IX of Denmark, Prince Carl's grandfather.

WANTED QUIET

Then, in 1905, when the Norwegian Storthing, or national congress, invited Carl to take the Norwegian throne as Norway's first independent monarch in 455 years, he and Princess Maud were torn between conflicting emotions.

They dreaded the responsibilities of sovereignty. They still dreamed of a quiet, undisturbed domesticity. Yet they were undecidedly tempted by the prospect of getting out, once for all, from under the powerful and relentless thumb of the Crown Princess Louise.

So Carl accepted the Norwegian crown [illegible] King Haakon VII.

Always of [illegible] he [illegible] Dictatorial sway. Family life to [illegible] be. He [illegible] Carl [illegible] better [illegible]

EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1940

ACCORDING to our beautiful American custom, we shall devote ourselves again tomorrow to those beloved people of treasured memory who no longer attend us on our mortal journey.

Memorial Day touches every life poignantly, and sweetly.

It brings back old names and faces.

It turns to long neglected pages in old books.

It recalls familiar music, cherished scenes and companionships.

Somehow, it makes all that has been good and valuable and beautiful in our lives LIVE AGAIN.

Remembrance is a priceless ingredient of human happiness.

THEY SEE GRANDPARENTS, LONG DEPARTED, AND HEAR:
"You Remembered Us. Only the Forgotten Are Dead."

In the charming story of "The Blue Bird," which recently presented the admirably and amazingly talented child, Shirley Temple, on the motion picture screen, two children were transported magically into the past in search of the secret of happiness.

There they came upon their elderly grandparents, long dead, and surprisingly these loved ones were very much alive, and overjoyed to have visitors from the land of the living.

And when the children inquired how this could be, the happy old grandmother replied in effect:

"You remembered us. Only the FORGOTTEN are dead."

This is far truer than we ordinarily realize.

We have only to RECALL some long-forgotten scene, and it is instantly peopled with LIVING characters and made real by REAL things, names and places.

We have only to REMEMBER the past to bring it back, to make it alive and real.

What a blessed power it is, to be able to search back through dim time and restore that which we love, and thus enrich ourselves.

Remembered things are the truest riches with which we can be endowed.

And those with loving and living memories are the truly rich.

The poet, Thomas Moore, well said:

"The heart that has truly loved never forgets,
"But as truly loves on to the close;
"As the sunflower turns on her god when he sets
"The same look which she turned when he rose."

WE SHOULD EXACT the last full measure of profit from tomorrow's Memorial observance.

We should visit, if possible, the hallowed ground where loved ones lie, and pay such tribute to their memory as remembrance suggests.

We should sit back in the evening of the day, and give free rein to the mind and the heart, and let the past intrude on the present, and listen to whispering and endearing voices, and feel the longed-for tender touch and see the enduring smile, all of which come rushing and crowding up through the years on the wind and wave of recollection.

And life will seem very sweet and very kind.

And bitterness and regret will fade like mists.

And fear will leave like the cloud in the Summer sky.

And burdens will be easier to bear, and the capacity and willingness for bearing them will be enhanced.

Memory has a miraculous quality.

It is charitable, forgiving, merciful.

But it also has such a capacity for preserving that which we have known to be good, true and worthy in others that we are inspired and encouraged and urged to LIVE worthily.

It refreshes and cleanses, like running water over the sands of time.

To give over a day to memories, to remembrance and recollection, is to open the door to life's swelling store of richest treasures, wherein we all have priceless things in abundance.

Memorial Day makes this country richer, its people finer and truer, its past blessed and sublime, its future brighter and wiser.

Observe it well.

For truly, only the forgotten are dead.

WHEN Britain declared war on Germany April 4, 1914, Premier Asquith said in his speech to the House of Commons: "I say we are fighting to vindicate the principle that small nationalities are not to be crushed in defiance of international good faith at the arbitrary will of a strong and overmastering power." Which gives an indication of how much in vain the millions of men died in 1914-18. With much truth Captain Eddie Rickenbacker says: "We need not politicians but business men in this drive for air rearmament if we are going to get anything for the billions of dollars we spend."

THAT FAMOUS WOMAN of the Old West known as Calamity Jane had a friend named Four Ace Dora . . . In England housewives are called home managers. Why not follow this example, lady, and pick yourself out a nice room in the house for an office and put a sign on it: "Home Manager?" . . . Gentlemen seeking a wife via the matrimonial advertising columns says he is: "A mechanical engineer, salesman, international economist, cook and hypnotist."

LOGIC SEEMS to indicate a victorious Rome-Berlin axis would join with Japan to turn on Russia. Think it over . . . Elitch's Gardens, Denver stock company, starts another season. Surely this is America's oldest stock company. Remember the stock companies of yesteryear: Jessie Bonstelle, Detroit; Corse Payton and Edna May Spooner, Brooklyn; Stuart Walker, Indianapolis; Castle Square, Boston, and the Alcazar in San Francisco? . . . Am asked why I do not mention my dog more. Client inquiring is probably kidding me. Maybe it is silly to think so much about a dog. Can only excuse it on grounds he has all the qualities I admire; loyalty, courage, gratitude, faculty for companionship, a sense of humor and faith in his friends . . . Most spectacular football team I ever saw was the Carlisle Indians . . . The "mechanized army" is the big thing these days but they still have to have horses and mules in all armies. In the World War the Germans captured Trianon, a French racehorse worth $200,000 and used him in the cavalry. Trianon was killed in action.

SOME DISPATCHES and articles by fireside generals are giving what they call the "Nazi Terror" a terrific build-up. In comparison Frankenstein looks like the timid soul of the cartoon. Goebbels spent millions in Europe to panic the populations of possible enemy countries with his build-up of the "Nazi Terror." He's getting it in the U. S. A. free.

-:- -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, May 29—It is interesting to note in some of the papers during the last few days, the suggestion that to insist that the hours of labor shall not be increased is a short-sighted policy in view of the fact that rapidity of production is necessary.

It seems to me that the people who say this are forgetting the fact that an employed nation is necessary for the survival of a democratic form of government, and that it will be time enough to increase the hours of labor when we have cut our unemployment to the minimum.

It may be said that the type of workers needed are not those who are unemployed.

It seems to me, with industry really wishing to co-operate on this defense front, it might be possible to train some of those who are now unemployed and who have not previously been mechanics, so that they would be able to go to work when new factories are ready to receive them.

SOME PEOPLE seem still unable to realize the fact that it is important to make democracy worth fighting for. Unless that challenge is met, we are apt to find ourselves with large numbers of people in our midst who care very little under what form of government they have to exist.

Many of us noted with admiration the action of the British Parliament, which practically conscripted all available materials for the use of the government in its present emergency.

But others have been saying that this action means an acknowledgement, either that a democracy must meet a dictatorship by becoming a dictatorship itself or, that England has never really been a democracy and therefore is making little or no change by accepting these new conditions.

It seems to me that this reasoning is unsound, because there is a great difference betwen a dictatorship imposed by an individual who gathers unto himself a following and allows them the ruthless use of force, and the temporary dictatorship imposed by a people who discipline themselves by accepting dictation in order to preserve their liberty.

It seems incredible to hear of the surrender of the Belgian king. Yet, I supose, there comes a point where human endurance can bear up no longer. One more country is now officially under Nazi domination.

I had such a pleasant day Monday with Mrs. Curtin Winsor and her two children. She has just taken over a new house and I can never see a house being done over without wanting to have a hand in it. I think I would have enjoyed being an interior decorator.

I spoke in the evening in the Haddonfield, New Jersey, Memorial High School and arrived in my New York City apartment about 12:30.

They've secured jobs for some of the wives in Brooklyn department stores . . . Josef Goebbels: Your anti-British broadcaster, Lord Haw-Haw, will be the subject of a new book, "The Death of Lord Haw-Haw" . . . THE CASUAL LOVER of the thoroughbred cannot tell you today whether ancient Brass Monkey, the Petain of the turf, has the conformation of a champion . . . We do know that the grand old veteran of a dozen campaigns at New England tracks looked all over a champ as, preened and braided and wearing fancy gew-gaws in his mane and tail, The Monkey took the spotlight at the Cocoanut Grove at midnight . . . And he behaved like a champion, too . . . Consider the ordeal of such a drastic break in training routine as the grand old horse faced last night.

MIDNIGHT, IN THE FIRST PLACE, IS HOURS later than the curfew of a thoroughbred in training . . . Picture a nightclub filled beyond capacity and a gantlet of cameramen and their light bombs . . . Then imagine the peculiar kind of a brief parade The Monkey was called upon to take as he walked to this unfamiliar and frightening barrier—a microphone . . . No horse ever pranced along that kind of preliminary walk to the "action" before The Monkey did it last night . . . He disembarked from a van parked across the rear entrance of the Cocoanut Grove, strode probably a dozen paces over pavement, passed through a door into the middle of two lines of bystanders, or by-sitters.

IN A MINUTE HE WAS on the open floor of a brilliantly lighted nightclub . . . Two swipes from his home stall were present, and so was Jockey Maurice "Baby Face" Berger, wearing the silks of The Monkey's owner . . . The swipes and the jockey were not strange to Brass Monkey . . . Everybody else was . . . Excepting, possibly, Ralph "Babe" Rubinstein, the great track announcer . . . and although Mr. Rubinstein has assumed a personal interest in The Monkey over the years, their meetings have been infrequent.

THE MONKEY STOOD PROUDLY—and quietly—under the glare of the spotlight and the gaze of five hundred admirers . . . His stint over, Brass Monkey returned to his van for the journey home . . . It was The Monkey's "retirement party," they say, and Lou Smith, the Vicar of Rockingham, will buy the horse and put him to pasture in Mr. Smith's particular parish of the turf—New Hampshire . . . One and all, those present last night hoped that this will come to pass . . . Beyond his many virtues as a handy racing tool, The Monkey last night established another milestone in an altogether different world from his own . . . That world is the so-called Rialto, where, it was proved with The Monkey as an instrument, that proper promotion (i. e.: a good "stunt" well publicized) will "pack 'em in" . . . They were jammed in the Cocoanut Grove until mid-early morning today . . . The receipts exceeded those of the past New Year's Eve.

PHILIP DORN JOINS TAYLOR CAST

By Harriet Parsons

Robert Taylor

Pinch-hitting for Louella O. Parsons who is on vacation

HOLLYWOOD, May 29 - After testing Franchot Tone, Albert Dekker, John Loder and dozens of others for the important role of Dr. Ditten in "Escape," MGM has signed Philip Dorn, young Dutch actor, to play the medico who saves Emmy Ritter from execution in a Nazi concentration camp. Figuring Dorn will become a valuable property, Metro has purchased his contract from Universal, the studio which brought him over to Hollywood a year ago for the lead in "Ski Patrol." He's six feet two, weighs 180 and has brown hair and blue eyes. "Escape" is already in production with Robert Taylor, Norma Shearer, Paul Lukas, Nazimova and Albert and Elsa Basserman taking direction from Mervyn Leroy. Signing of Dorn completes the cast of characters for this story of Nazi Germany adapted from Ethel Vance's engrossing novel

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: All Hollywood sad over the news of Walter Connolly's shockingly sudden death. He had been ill for a week after a horseback ride brought on a recurrence of some earlier trouble with the veins in his legs, but no one dreamed his condition was dangerous. The film colony's deepest sympathy goes to his widow, Nedda Harrigan.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

"FLO" was desperate. She was beginning to fear that the long months in the hospital had dulled her personality.

At least everyone seemed annoyed when she asked for work.

She stopped before the wide stage door and read again the "ad" she had brought with her. She read it as if she was afraid the meaning of the words had changed, though it was scarcely ten minutes since she had cut it out of the paper.

SATISFIED that this was the right place, she pulled open the heavy door, stepped in, and walked backstage.

Crossing the stage in her most impressive manner, "Flo" advanced to a desk, almost hidden in a far corner of the vast space. From behind the desk a heavy-set man was appraising her long, lithe steps with a casualness that was disturbing.

"Mr. Brown?" she asked.

The man behind the desk only nodded.

"I came to answer your ad," she began. "I . . .

"Ever dance in a revue?"

"I've had lots of experience," she stated firmly, hoping Brown would not notice the evasion. (She had to get that audition.)

Brown took a leisurely puff on his cigar, as he studied her.

Thoughts raced through Flo's mind with the speed of light.

"I have had a lot of experience," she told herself. "Haven't I danced at every charity and benefit show in my town? What if it was an amateur act? Dancing is dancing, isn't it?" . . . "Ive got to get this audition."

Her mind was going at top speed when Brown pressed for a definite answer.

"Just what experience have you had?"

An answer slipped to her tongue. It was ridiculous. But she decided to risk it.

"I spent four months in a cast on the Pacific coast," she said.

"They thought I did so well that I decided to try the New York stage.

For the first time Brown seemed interested. "Take off your coat," he said, "and I'll give you a routine to try."

Flo almost collapsed. She was getting an audition! She would finally be told whether or not she could dance.

AND SHE DID DANCE. Brown complimented her, but more important, he said, "Come back at eight Monday morning."

Flo walked on air as she went through the door to the street. "Four months in a cast," she laughed. "It took four months in a PLASTER cast to get an audition!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

DISTRESSING letters these days. Bitter doubts from thousands of fine Americans whose faith in decency has been shaken to the roots by the horror overseas. Old folks quavering:

"I'm 63 and I've seen plenty of trouble in my time. Yet some how I always believed that things would come out right if folks did their duty and were honest and kind. But look at what's happened to Holland and Belgium. You couldn't ask for better behaved countries, but it didn't save them. I don't know what to believe any more. Sometimes I almost think goodness doesn't pay."

Young idealists sneering, "Don't ever talk to me again about God or Justice or 'righteousness prevailing.' Do you think if there was a God He'd let such things happen?"

"I DON'T KNOW what to believe." That's the grimmest statement any human being can make. You can face almost any other form of loss or loneliness, but when your faith goes out you're up against the utmost desolation.

Yet, dark as these days are, I do not see why we should doubt the ultimate triumph of decency because of them. The mere fact that Savagery seems to be having the best of it for the moment doesn't prove anything.

Savagery has often had the best of it in the long battle between the jungle and civilization. And the reason is plain enough.

Minds and consciences don't mature in a day. It takes a lot of wrangling with trial-and-error to achieve nobility.

Goodness is the latest, greatest and most difficult adventure man has ever attempted—and he's still skidding on the trail. But why lose your faith over that . . . or doubt God merely because he's letting man work out his own destiny?

AS FOR ME, I choose to bet on Decency. I believe it has consistently won out since the beginning and will win again.

The very loathing with which we regard this war, our repudiation of all the vicious old sentimental slogans, is the most shining sign that a change has come.

THIS IS THE BEGINNING, NOT THE END, OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD!

Memorial Day

By Frederic Hatton

LIEUTENANT JOHN RANDALL came out of the Argonne campaign in 1918 with a Distinguished Service Cross and a touch of shell-shock.

He also brought back from the war a wife in the lovely person of Mary Carlton. She had been a volunteer nurse in the French hospital where he recovered from his experiences at the front. He always insisted that he had been cured by looking at her and that he would never have another attack of the jitters so long as she was about.

But four years later he was again in a sanitarium. The excitement of seeing many of his old comrades at an American Legion convention and a march under a hot sun had brought a return of his old malady. For a day and a night he imagined himself at the front with an inescapable barrage creeping towards him.

When Mary Randall again had her husband safely at home she faced him firmly and said: "No more parades!"

John agreed with her. The music, the cadence of marching feet, did something to him. His doctor told him to avoid crowds. Masses of people emotionally disturbed him.

And so for years John Randall avoided reunions and regimental celebrations. All he knew about them was what he read in the papers. He spent those days playing golf or riding off in his car for a picnic in the country with Mary.

However, as the war faded to a dim and remote pageant on the eastern horizon, John gradually forgot his nerves. He went to the Legeon convention in 1936 and enjoyed it hugely—and never a tremor. Later he attended a noisy regimental banquet convinced that he was himself again.

Mary forgot her old fears and made no objection when he announced one May evening that he was going to march in the Memorial Day procession. She, too, thought it would be fine to join her unit. The commanders of the various posts had sent out a special call. The committee of arrangements hoped to make this the greatest Memorial Day parade in the city's history, as it was felt the veterans of the Civil War would not march again with the men who had fought in Cuba and the Philippines, with the lads who had crossed the sea to France.

The Cast of Characters in "Memorial Day"

JOHN, World War hero and a gas victim which later takes its toll.

MARY, a World War nurse who eventually weds John. Years later they witness a Memorial Day parade.

YOUTH RETURNS

And so on the morning of May 30 John and Mary were up early, he in the old uniform freshly cleaned and pressed; she in her white outfit with the little starched cap, the blue cape.

With trembling fingers she proudly pinned the Distinguished Service Cross on John's chest. Suddenly the years seemed to fall away from them. They both felt very young and exalted again. They were a little tearful. He kissed her.

"Mary, you can't be a day over eighteen!"

"And if I'm eighteen you're twenty-two. A trim young shavetail!" She clung to him, her heart pounding in her throat.

Then they went out and got into their car for the drive in from their suburban home to the city.

Mary slipped her hands around John's arm and leaned her head against the khaki sleeve of his coat. "We've had a wonderful life together, haven't we, Darling?" she sighed. "It's been perfect. I wouldn't have an hour, a minute, changed!"

A wave of emotion swept over him. She deserved a kiss for that speech. He let go of the wheel for a moment.

A heavy truck lumbered abruptly from a lane into the highway. John snatched for the wheel and swung his car around to the right. That was all he remembered for a moment. There had been a flash of red and then everything went black.

When he opened his eyes Mary was in the seat beside him lying back quietly. They were, apparently, still sitting in the car, but it had come to a stop up over the curb on a little green patch.

"Well, that was a close squeak!" he gasped. "Are you all right, Mary?"

She raised herself up and looked at him anxiously. "I think I am, but those trucks ought to look where they're going."

"I know. But I'm afraid it was really my fault."

"No, it wasn't. It was my fault. I shouldn't have gotten sentimental while you were driving."

They looked about. The truck had disappeared. John had a strange shaken feeling. He did not care to admit this to Mary, but she sensed it.

"Darling, let's find a nice quiet place where we can watch the procession from the car. This narrow escape has upset me a little. I don't want you out of my sight. You're too precious to lose."

He smiled back at her. What an understanding, adorable person she was. He never had to explain things to her.

"GOD BLESS 'EM"

They soon found a place on an empty lot rising above the wide drive on which the procession was now beginning to pass. They sat quietly in the car listening to band after band, the ceaseless rolling of drums. They saluted the flags as they were carried by.

A sound of curious, hushed applause seemed to be working up the street. Then a little group of G. A. R. men appeared marching gravely, carrying the beat at slow step.

"God bless 'em," John said. "Here come the old boys! Listen to the tapping of their canes! See that ancient zouave! Look, he's carrying the torn flag of his regiment! Mary, do you realize they are marching out of history! What a gorgeous day for their last assembly!"

He turned to look at his wife. Tears were streaming down her cheeks. She was standing up in the car beside him, her hands clutching his sleeve—the one with the faded wound chevron. There followed regiment after regiment of National Guard men in colorful uniforms; then the veterans of 1898, followed by endless companies of World War fighters—seas of khaki and blue; the representatives of other nations, finally a Finnish flag with a little guard. People gasped and wiped their eyes as this went by. The nations of the world seemed to be passing in review.

John Randall was going through a curious and inexplicable experience. It came on him like the hysteria of shell-shock. Evidently he had been shaken up more seriously than he thought.

He did not dare speak of this to Mary. He could see that she was staring out as before, enthralled by the spectacle evolving before her under the hot May sunlight. He felt that he was being pulled into that glittering parade. He tried to look away, but he was drawn toward all those men. He had to go where they were going.

INTO THE SKY!

The men were marching straight into the sky!

He forgot everything—even Mary—as he joined that movement to Heaven. All the world seemed to stretch far beneath him like a gigantic map. Everything was a mingling of lands and seas in an unearthly splendor beyond all imagining.

Great masses of humanity seemed to fill the entire firmament from horizon to horizon. Time seemed to have reversed itself and repeopled the world. He saw strange banners, barbaric emblems, ancient chariots and carts; elephants with howdahs, huge wains and fantastic Teuton wagons. All about were endless phalanxes of dusky-faced warriors, armed with spears or short swords. There were crusaders in armor with heraldic designs on their shields. Finally he saw emerging from clouds shot with scarlet and crimson, men in blue, in gray, in khaki. They were all swept along on the great, sky-bound tide. A great mountain now seemed to rise for miles and miles above them. There were thunders and lightnings; a trumpet sounded as if coming from all directions. And all the people trembled. Because the Lord was descending on the mountain in a heavy smoke. There were rumblings as of a great earthquake.

Then John realized it was not a temblor, but the shattering notes of a great voice that was coming out of the tremendous cloud.

"Thou shalt not kill," it said.

It all faded away. John realized he was being pulled back to earth.

"Darling!" It was Mary's voice he heard.

He opened his eyes. He was lying in what looked like a hospital room. He looked up in his wife's eyes.

"What happened" he asked.

"You had a sun-stroke, but the doctor says you will soon be all right."

"But I had the most marvelous dream!"

"All right, you can tell me all about it—tomorrow!"

THE END.

Don't miss the entertaining short story complete on this page Friday.

"God bless 'em," John said. "Listen to the tapping of their canes."

RED CROSS IS NEAR FUND GOAL

With their goal still $65,000 away, volunteer workers of the Boston Metropolitan chapter of the Red Cross turned back to the business district today in a final effort to go "over the top" by Saturday.

The local chapter, with $235,000 of its allotted $300,000 already received, leads its group in the nationwide drive to collect $10,000,000 for the war blasted humanity of Europe.

Surgical dressings are already being turned out, and a second ship is being loaded with supplies pending receipt of sufficient funds, workers were told.

Donations in the suburbs continued encouraging. Westwood reported 135 per cent subscribed, Dover 117 per cent, Jamaica Plain 128 per cent and Dedham 101 per cent.

Programs aimed at attracting large crowds have been arranged. A sports program will be held at Everett Stadium, Everett, Saturday at 1:30 p. m. The Young Women's Republican Club will present a satire tonight at Belmont town hall.

Boston After Dark

At this address, the Clarks and their young family yesterday took residence after a trip to Buffalo together . . . Couples "on the verge" seldom buy a new home as large as the one housing the Clarks in Manhasset . . . Young Ed Carroll, bright young son of Large Dan'l of Boston, takes another step up the ladder of showbusines.. tonight with his opening of Riverside Park, near Agawam.

THE RESORT OFFERS roller-skating, dancing (to name bands) and an open-air movie house . . . Horace Heidt's band opens festivities tonight, and a tipoff on Carroll Junior's canniness as a showman may be had from the news that among the Heidtsmen is Frankie Carl . . . Besides being a marvelous pianist, Mr. Carl is author of "Moonlight Serenade" . . . he's a Springfield boy.

Mistress Mary's Garden

Cosmos Easy To Grow

By T. W. LEGGETT

In the charming days of early summer we particularly welcome the flowers of the present and eagerly await those that are yet to come.

In the autumn after the first frost, the garden looks forlorn and a few flowers then are treasured for their cheerful color as well as for cutting.

Cosmos is a useful flower for midseason that persists even after the first frosts of autumn. Have some of these beautiful flowers along fences and at the back of beds, and possibly a few in the vegetable garden. The seed may be sown anytime now.

When they bloom, pick the flowers freely and do not permit them to go to seed.

The single blooms of the newer types are about four inches in diameter, of soft colors, pink, crimson and white, produced abundantly on long stems. Be sure to include the Orange Flare, a valuable addition to the others.

The double flowers are also beautiful. Only expect about half of the plants to produce double flowers. Cosmos are three to four feet high and should be spaced 18 inches apart. When about a foot high, pinch off the tops to induce bushy growth.

The requirements of Cosmos are simple; good garden soil in a sunny location and water in the early morning in dry weather.

Jerry W. Carter of Tallahassee, a member of the state railroad commission, conceded the victory to Andrews, advocate of a strong national defense program and supporter of most New Deal policies. Carter had the backing of the Townsend organization.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 30¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

PITCHERS RATHER than home-run hitters may be the deciding factors in the American League pennant race this year. The various clubs are faced with a staggering number of double-headers, and strong arms as well as powerful bats will be required to complete this strenuous program.

LEFTY GROVE

The surging Yanks have better pitchers than the Red Sox, and this asset may enable them to win the pennant once more. I have felt right along that the public was too quick in counting the Yanks out of the flag fight. While Joe McCarthy's club got off to a poor start, it has picked up in speed, pitching and in hitting power and is roaring towards the top of the league.

The Yanks looked like champions as they crushed the Senators yesterday, while they were impressive in their Sunday victory over the Red Sox despite the deplorable weather conditions.

The Red Sox have a long list of available pitchers, but none of them have looked any too good this season.

It is apparent that Lefty Grove has almost reached the end of the baseball trail as an active player. Grove has started in six games this season, and has only finished one of them. That was the opennig game of the season against the Senators which he won. Since then Grove has been knocked out of the box five times in a row.

Grove has had a remarkable career as a diamond star. He has staged numerous comebacks when it appeared as if his pitching days were over. It is evident, however, that at Lefty's age in life Father Time must soon catch up with him and force him to the bench.

Ostermueller Red Sox Disappointment

OSTERMUELLER continues to be a Red Sox disappointment. Ostermueller was in poor health during the Spring training, and as a result was obliged to take things easy during the early days of the season.

Ostermueller has flashed a few brilliant games in former league campaigns which explains why Eddie Collins and Joe Cronin have retained his services. They are hopeful Ostermueller will eventually develop into a consistent flinger.

Bagby, Galehouse, Dickman, Harris, Wilson and Hash are other Red Sox flingers who will be presented with plenty of opportunities to prove their worth during the double-header season.

What the Red Sox have lacked for several seasons has been a

BEES SEND ERRICKSON AGAINST FLOSSY PHILS

By BILL GRIMES

Just before they started on their first Western trip a month ago, the Bees lost five games to the weatherman, three to the Dodgers and had bowed twice to the Giants and once to the Phillies, before chalking up their initial victory of the National League season.

GENE MOORE
Returns to Bees

Gene Moore Back With B's

Boston's Bees bought back Gene Moore from the Brooklyn club today.

The husky 30-year-old outfielder who bats and throws lefthanded was traded to the Dodgers with Ira Hutchinson for Buddy Hassett and Jimmy Outlaw in December of 1938 after three years with the Bees.

He originally came to Boston from the Rochester club, a Cardinal farm, after a pro baseball career that started in 1929.

He had a poor year in 1939 with the Dodgers, but this year has been flashing the fine form he showed when he first came to the Bees before a knee injury hindered his play.

Gene will rejoin the Bees in time for tomorrow's holiday doubleheader against the Phils.

Now, the Phillies are back in town for a three game series. It was Doc Prothro's outfit that saved the Bees from going West without a single win. Lefty Joe Sullivan and his butterfly ball let the Phillies down with seven hits the day before the Bees hit the road and the Phillies wound up on the short end of a 3 to 2 tilt.

That was the Sunday afternoon that Chet Ross tripled with Buddy Hassett and Tony Cuccinello on the sacks and then scored on Les Scarsella's long fly to Hershel Martin.

MULCAHY FACES BEES

Richard Merriwell Errickson will start for the Bees against Hugh Mulcahy, the former Brighton boy, who now resides during the off-season in Newton.

The Bees were washed out yesterday in their final game against the Giants and Pres. Bob Quinn spent the off day looking under the rugs at National League Field for the $100,000, it is alleged that the Cubs offered for Eddie Miller and the 75 G's the Giants and Brooklyn are supposed to have laid on the line for Maxie West.

SCRIBES SELL BEES

Before the Bees started south, the Scribes began to trade Maxie West first to the Dodgers and then to the Giants. Unfortunately for Bob Quinn the writers are not in a position to make trades. All they can do is to cause trouble for the front office and dissatisfaction among the players they put on the auction block.

Of late the scribes have had the Cubs offering $100,000 for Eddie Miller. But, the truth of the matter is that the Cubs haven't offered a dime for the Bees' shortstop. Naturally the Chicago club would like to have Miller and the same holds true for every club in either major league. The Cubs did talk about getting Miller but Manager Gabby Hartnett's best proposal was a couple of spavined players for the Bee.

Bob Quinn has started to see the light. He's been trying to build a winning ball club for Boston for four years. His clubs have played real baseball but apparently the local fans do not appreciate the efforts of the Bees. They want to see pop flies sail over short fences for home runs. So, Bob Quinn has come to the conclusion that it's

BUTLAND HURLS FOR RED SOX

Club Happy as Galehouse Goes Route Against A's

PHILADELPHIA, May 29—Sitting in the driver's seat, two full games ahead of Cleveland, the Red Sox will attempt to sweep their abbreviated series with the Athletics here this afternoon with Bill Butland making his first major league start.

The Sox picked up a full game on the Indians by taking the Mackmen under lights last night after the Tigers had clouted the Cleveland outfit in broad daylight.

Last night's triumph was probably the sweetest the Red Sox have won this year for many reasons. The foremost being:

1—Denny Galehouse went the distance allowing but eight scattered hits and when any Sox pitcher goes the distance that's news.

2—Jimmy Foxx who has never been able to hit under lights came up with three sparkling hits to break the jinx.

3—A capacity crowd of 33,000 gave the Yawkeymen a nice bit of revenue for the night.

A's RUN UNEARNED

The A's tallied just once off Denny and that was an unearned run at that. It came in the very first inning when Wally Moses tripled with one gone. Galehouse put on the pressure to fan Bob Johnson and then forced Frankie Hayes to ground to Tabor but Jim booted the play and the run trickled home. After that, only two men reached third.

In the eighth with victory in sight, Galehouse fanned Johnson, Hayes and Siebert in a row—the A's powerhouse trio.

In justice to Babich, he did hurl great ball, but the Sox did pound him for thirteen clean hits, enough to generally win any ball game.

As a matter of fact, Babich got out of a nice hole in the first inning when he fanned Foxx and Cronin with two men on the bases.

WILLIAMS TIES SCORE

Then after two hitless innings, Teddy Williams picked up his second straight single and went to third when Captain Jimmy Foxx doubled. Cronin then grounded to Rubeling and Teddy scampered home with the tying run.

After wasting two hits in the fifth and another pair in the sixth, the Hose scored in the eighth what proved to be the winning run.

Doc Cramer picked up a cheap double when Wally Moses slipped going after his fly ball. Williams walked and Foxx followed with a single to center but Moses avenged the Cramer hit by rifling a strike to the plate to nip Doc in his attempt to score. Williams went to third on the play and counted while Cronin grounded to Siebert.

The boys then put the game away safely in the ninth when Jim Tabor opened festivities with a triple and strolled home on Desautel's single. Galehouse then sacrificed and a Finney single and a Cramer infield hit filled the bases. Williams lofted to Johnson and Desautels scored the final run of the game.

The Sox pilot could not make up his mind who to pitch last night. He had Jack Wilson who proved very effective under the arcs last year with his fire ball delivery and he had Bill Butland, the rookie who has yet to get his name in a Red Sox box score. Bill saw plenty of service under lights with Minneapolis last year and chalked up most of his 18 victories after dark.

But playing hunches once again, Pilot Joe called on Denny Galehouse and the right handed curve baller paid off handsomely.

Today Butland gets his first major league shot and he will stack up against Nelson Potter.

Rindge-Latin Baseball Game Today at 5:45

The city championship game between Rindge Tech and Cambridge high and Latin school baseball nines will be played at 5:45 this afternoon at Russell Field after being postponed since last Tuesday because of the inclement weather.

The contest will also determine the final standings of the two teams in the Suburban League. All league games must be played before June 1.

Will Harridge To Pay Tribute To Lefty Grove

President Will R. Harridge of the American League, will be one of the chief speakers at the Lefty Grove banquet to be held at the Copley Plaza on Saturday, June 8.

The presence of Harridge is an indication of the regard with which Grove is held by all officials of the league, for it is unusual for the president of the league to attend banquets to individual players.

However, Harridge— in accepting the invitation to participate in the Grove activities—has expressed himself as being only too willing to be present.

He feels that Grove, who is one of baseball's immortals, has done considerable to keep the game of baseball on a very high plane.

In addition to President Harridge, Thomas H. Connolly, umpire-in-chief, will also be at the head table to pay official tribute from the umpires of the league.

YANKEES IN FIRST DIVISION

By The Associated Press

Without fanfare or fireworks the New York Yankees have arrived back in the first division of the American League and apparently have finally found the trail that can lead to their coveted fifth consecutive world championship.

The Yanks humbled the Washington Senators 12-4 and 3-1 in a doubleheader at Yankee Stadium to attain six victories in their last seven games—in fact, nine victories in 12 games since that demoralizing eight-game losing streak.

YANKS VS RED SOX

Today New York is only 6½ games out of first place and easily can be riding the crest before the Fourth of July.

The Yanks will play three games with the league-leading Boston Red Sox tomorrow and Friday, and this series will determine whether the advance is to be swift or slow.

In subduing the Senators, the McCarthymen tallied 12 runs on 14 hits in the first game with Bill Dickey hitting his first homer of the season with two on and Joe Gordon getting a home run and two doubles.

Rookie Marvin Breuer limited Washington to seven hits in the second game with Buddy Lewis' home run costing him a shutout.

The Red Sox tightened their hold on first place, at least temporarily, by beating the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-1, in a night game after the second-place Cleveland Indians had lost to Detroit, 8-5.

WHITE SOX LOSE TWO

The Yankees' leap from sixth to fourth place was made possible by the Chicago White Sox dropping both ends of a doubleheader to the St. Louis Browns, 10-9 and 7-5.

Holy Cross Favored to Whip B. C.

CLEAN UP! Frank Davis, Somerville's heavy calibre gift to Boston College's diamond forces, will be hitting from sluggers' berth, old No. 4, tomorrow when the Eagles journey to Fitton Field, Worcester, to tangle with their ancient rival, Holy Cross, in their annual Memorial Day classic. This is the first of a three-game series.

PURPLE'S '39 JINX HURLS FOR EAGLES

WORCESTER, May 29—Holy Cross and Boston College, ancient Jesuit college rivals, will renew a baseball rivalry which had its start way back in the late part of the 19th century when they cross bats at Fitton Field in the first game of their annual three-contest get-together tomorrow afternoon. A large crowd of holiday customers is expected to be on hand when action starts at 3 o'clock.

As is usually the case the Purple Crusaders will rule pre-series favorite. The past two seasons, however, that mantle hasn't meant much, for Boston College has come through the winner.

Last year the third and deciding contest went into extra innings before Fred Maguire's Eagles whistled home victorious. Fred Leahy, senior right hander from Somerville, Mass., who pitched the Boston nine to victory then will be the starting Eagle twirler tomorrow.

H. C. CLEANED UP RIVAL

Holy Cross, which has cleaned up every scrap of collegiate opposition which it has been called upon to face since it opened its season by losing to Brown, sports a healthy record of 11 wins in a dozen starts. That record and the fact that the well balanced Crusader squad is blessed with four fine hurlers, bodes no good for the underdog Eagles who in 12 starts this season have bitten the dust eight times.

Capt. Mike Klarnick or George Woods, a sensational sophomore from Waterbury, Ct., will probably take the home hill. Klarnick, a senior, has faced the Eagles in previous seasons.

WOODS UNDEFEATED

Woods, who hasn't been defeated this year, if he works tomorrow will be tasting his first "ivy coated" series opposition. Standing 6 feet 2 inches and carrying 195 odd pounds Woods is an imposing picture when he toes the mound. He's an imposing pitcher, also, as Crusaders opponents can testify. If veteran Coach Jack Barry doesn't feel that either Klarnick or Woods is ready, he will call upon Jack Creamer or Ernie Ford.

The supporting cast of Crusaders, headed by cleanup batter and third baseman Dick Blasser of Dorchester and Alex Nahigian, fast moving footballer from Medford who plays left field, will be the same lineup which has so emphatically voiced Holy Cross' Eastern Seaboard collegiate championship claims. The claims have powerful foundations inasmuch as the Crusaders have had little trouble tripping Temple, Tufts, Dartmouth, Colgate, Harvard, Yale, et al.

Probable starting lineups, batting orders:

Olympets Lose Softball Debut

The Olympets softball team dropped its seasonal opener, 2 to 1, to the Springfield Fisk girls last night at the Boston Garden, in a closely contested game.

The visitors tallied the winning marker after Mary Donnelly had retired two batters in the last frame. Louise Sullivan led off the ninth inning with a single to left. Donnelly then retired the next two batters but walked Bernice Hassett. Sullivan then scored the winning run on Babe Lasoski's third hit of the game.

EDDIE COLLINS, JR., BALTIMORE STAR

By The Associated Press.

In looking over the major league prospects on the roster of the International League baseball clubs this season, don't overlook Edward Trowbridge Collins, Jr., whose dad was some shakes as a ballplayer a few years back.

Eddie, who is playing center field for the Baltimore Orioles, probably finds it a handicap to be the son of one of baseball's greatest players. He'll always be compared to his famous father and the only bit of luck he has along that line is that he doesn't play the same position.

The younger Collins was a .400 hitter at Yale and had scouts following him around all his senior year. Instead of joining up with the Boston Red Sox, where Eddie Senior is general manager, he struck out for himself with the Athletics, where his father started.

HIT .238 LAST YEAR

Last season Collins got into 32 games with the A's and hit only .238. So Connie Mack decided to send him to Baltimore this year, where he could get more experience.

Eddie hasn't developed into one of those fence-busting hitters that are a Baltimore specialty, but he's holding his own at bat and doing a bit more in the field. With the aid of two singles he garnered in last night's 7-1 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs, he's hitting .296.

His principal contribution to last night's game, however, was a spectacular ninth-inning catch that started a double play and pulled Italo Chelini out of trouble.

ORIOLES SCORE FOUR

Chelini came into the game in the eighth after Roy Bruner, who gave the Chiefs only two hits, encountered some difficulties. The game was close at that stage, but the Orioles pushed over four runs in the ninth to sew up the decision.

The Birds couldn't gain an inch in the pennant race, for their principal rivals, Rochester and Jersey City, both turned in 7-5 victories. Rochester's league-leading Red Wings whipped the Buffalo Bisons for the third straight time while the Jersey Giants conquered their favorite enemies, the Newark Bears.

Home runs by Harry Davis, who had a perfect day at the plate with four hits, and by Augie Bergamo accounted for most of Rochester's scoring.

HOMERS BREAK UP GAME

But the Wings had to push over their winning runs off Sal Maglie in the late innings after Frank Trexler's pinch double gave the Bisons three runs and a tie in the sixth.

Circuit blasts by Woody Jensen and Tom Neill in the ninth broke up the Jersey City-Newark battle in the ninth. Big Ed Levy had tied the count in the eighth with a double—his third hit of the night and half the Newark total off Hal Feldman—which sent Tommy Holmes across the plate.

Toronto and Montreal were idle.

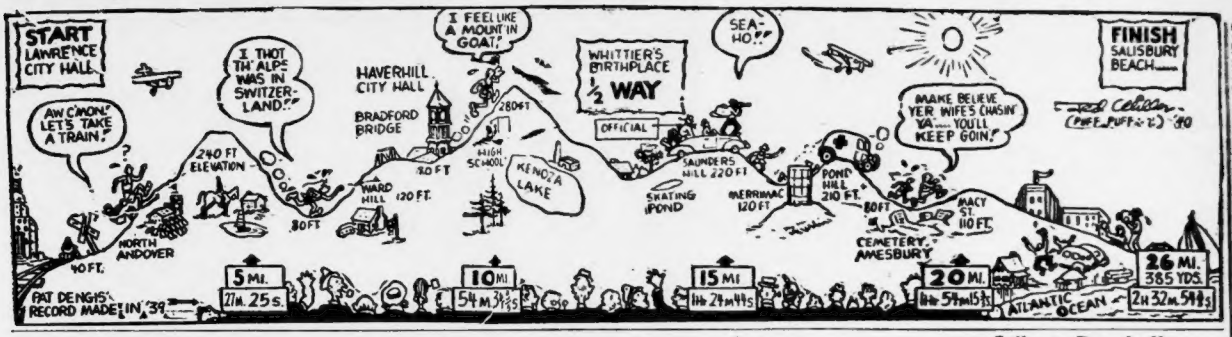
Cote, B. A. A. Record Holder, Runs in Salisbury Race



Cote, Kelley, Heinecke, Pawson to Answer Gun In Lawrence-Salisbury Memorial Day Marathon

Gerard Cote, winner of this year's B. A. A. Marathon, will lead a star-studded field of over 70 macadam performers in the fourth annual Salisbury Chamber of Commerce full distance marathon of 26 miles, 385 yards on the holiday tomorrow afternoon.

The large field will face the starter's gun at 12:45 in front of the Lawrence City Hall and will follow a course that will take them through North Andover, Haverhill and Amesbury before they reach the finish line at the water's edge of Salisbury Beach, some two and a half hours later.

This year's run will practically be a repetition of this past spring's B. A. A. grind as the field although not half so large, has about the same faces.

SET B. A. A. RECORD

Cote, flying the same colors of St. Hyacinthe, Canada, as he did when he won the Patriot's Day classic in record time; Johnny Kelley of Arlington, former winner of the B. A. A., and Don Heinecke of Baltimore, the boys who finished in that order a few months ago, are again expected to battle it out for top honors tomorrow.

It will be the first time since that hectic race that these three leading runners meet in a race the same distance. If they put on the kind of a battle displayed that day, and given a fair break by the weather man, the record of 2 hours 2 minutes and 2-5 seconds made last year by the late Pat Dengis of Baltimore, should topple.

And then, there's Ellison "Tarzan" Brown of Westerly, R. I., the former record holder of the B. A. A. run who's not to be forgotten. Tarzan has been active taking part in every 10-miler that has been held.

GERARD COTE

RAN THIRD AT BRAINTREE

Last Saturday, he finished third in the 10-mile road race at Braintree but captured the time prize.

Paul Donato of Roxbury is also considered a threat mainly on his performance in the Hopkinton to Boston grind. Paul finished with a rush and was numbered among the first six.

Other leading runners sprinkled among the field are Leslie Pawson, Pawtucket, R. I., two times winner of the B. A. A. run and George Durgin of Beverly; Clarence DeMar, the oldest plodder of them all, also is entered.

The outstanding feature this year will be the three-man team race between the Olympic selected teams of Canada and the United States. On paper, the Staters should win but with Girard Cote leading the Canadian group, Kelley, Pawson and Heinecke will have to step.

LANDIS INVESTIGATES

If the Cubs will give him $100,000 for Eddie Miller and the Giants will write a check for $75,000 for Maxie West, Bob Quinn is in a mood to accept the offers, for he realizes that he cannot injure the gates at National League Field to the extent of a couple of hundred thousand dollars by consummating those sales.

The Chicago Cubs denied yesterday that they had made an offer of cash for Eddie Miller. Bill Terry also protested that he hadn't done any tampering with Bee players. Judge K. M. Landis mi,ht be requested to investigate the source of the stories which have Miller going to the Cubs, Cuccinello to the Giants and West to the Dodgers.

The Bees and Phillies will play a single game this afternoon at National League Field and a double header tomorrow afternoon.

SOMERVILLE TO SEE MAHAN

Since they split a two game series with the Bees a month ago, the Phillies purchased Art Mahan, the former Somerville High School and Villanova first baseman from the Red Sox.

When he was a sophomore at Somerville High, Art Mahan was given a try out by the Red Sox, whom at the time were owned by Bob Quinn. He was a very promising youngster but was advised by Bob Quinn to go to college and let baseball wait until he had obtained his education.

Mahan accepted the advice, graduated from high school and then went to Villanova. In the spring of 1935, Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox signed Art Mahan to a contract in March. Upon his graduation the following June Mahan went to Rocky Mount and for five seasons he was shipped around the Red Sox farm system.

BERGER ALSO HERE

Art Mahan is no chicken but he's been playing great ball for the Phillies and all of Somerville will be out to see him in his first appearance in the old home town as a major leaguer.

There's also another old time favorite with the Phillies, Wally Berger, who was cast adrift by the Cincinnati Reds recently and picked up by Doc Prothro.

With Art Mahan and Wally Berger in their lineup, the Phillies will prove a fine drawing card for the Bees over the holiday.

Malden Merchants Play Elephants Club

The Malden Merchants baseball team will play the Elephants Club of Cambridge at Pine Banks Park, Malden, tomorrow at 3 p. m. Billie DeMerrit, star twirler for B. U.'s varsity this season, will be on the mound for the Merchants, with Leo Turner on the receiving end.

Bill Clarke, also a B. U. varsity pitcher of this year's team, will hurl for the G. O. P.'s, with Albert Genito catching.

Both nines are replete with former high school and college stars and a close game is anticipated.

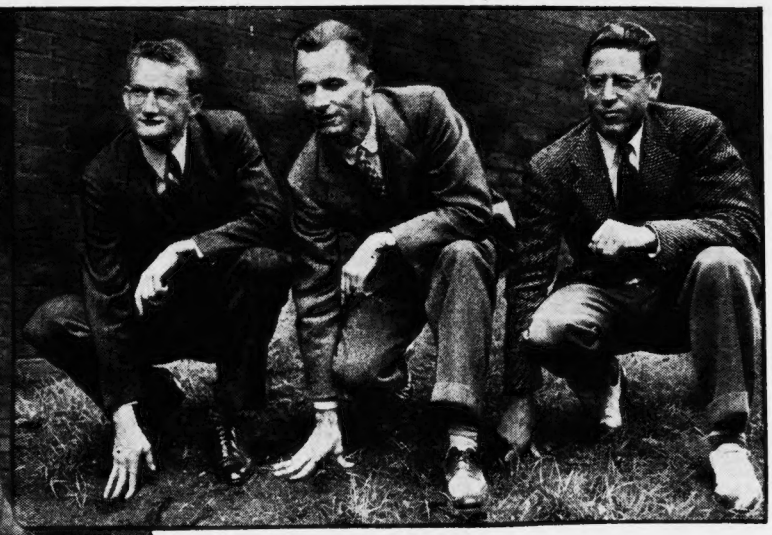
AS GOLDEN BEARS ROAR INTO HUB FOR IC'S

THIS IS EASY—But star shotputter Herb Michaels of California will find the I. C. weight-pushing more difficult, with Al Blozis of Georgetown to meet, and others. However, he's a good bet to win valuable points for the Golden Bears.



CHAMPIONS? — California trackmen, I. C. 4-A title favorites in Harvard Stadium Friday and Saturday, stretch their legs after Boston arrival via train. Clarence Barnes, left, 1941 co-captain, is a 440 standout. Danzil Widel, center, 440 and 880, will bid for a double point grab. Ted Vollmer, right, is a competent two-miler. A stadium workout was billed for them this afternoon.

"WE'RE READY" — Coach Brutus Hamilton of California seems a bit grim as he contemplates the tough competition his boys must face in the Intercollegiates. But he said his toilers had the stuff to win, with a bit of good luck.

FIGHT SEER SHUNS GALENTO-BAER GO

NEW YORK, May 29 (INS)—If Johnny Attell has added a slight swagger to his normal gait today, it is probably due to justifiable pride in his ability as a fistic prophet.

The rotund little matchmaker for Mike Jacobs' 20th Century Club has had uncanny success in forecasting the outcome of recent bouts in Madison Sq. Garden, and he is so elated over his skill that he ventured to predict the results of some impending major ring engagements.

"Everybody said I was crazy last January when I predicted that at least three champions would be dethroned this year," Johnny boasted today.

"Well, what happened?

"Lew Jenkins took the lightweight title from Lou Ambers; Harry Jeffra knocked Joey Archibald loose from the featherweight throne, and Ken Overlin took the middleweight crown away from Ceferino Garcia.

CONN OVER LESNEVICH

"Now I'll tell you how the hope figures for the next four big fight heavyweight title in Detroit June 5. That bout will be a honey to watch.

"We have a double feature set for June 6 in the Garden. Pat Comiskey, who has won 23 of his 26 fights by knockouts, figures to reverse the decision Steve Dudas gained over him in Pat's one defeat.

"Pat broke his hands in that fight but they are okay now, and it would not surprise me if he stopped Dudas.

"In the other half of the 10-round doubleheader, Buddy Baer figures to stop Valentin Campolo, in one of the wildest fights we'll ever see. Campolo is easy to hit and easy to floor but he keeps getting up.

"If he can get off the canvas often enough he might flatten Baer, who sometimes gets tired. This is a pier 6 brawl if ever there was one.

LOUIS TO K. O. GODOY

"Joe Louis should stiffen Arturo Godoy in their return heavyweight title bout June 20. I look for Louis to be the same vicious killer this time he was in the second Max Schmeling battle.

"I don't want to forecast the Max Baer-Tony Galento bout scheduled for Jersey City July 2 until I see how the boys shape up in training.

"Right now it figures to be short and sweet. Say half a dozen rounds with the one lucky enough to get in the first heavy damage finishing on top.

"This one figures to be a duplicate of the Buddy Baer-Campolo thing—a blitzkrieg with plenty of carnage on both sides."

JUST FOR THE RIDE—Lucky freshman Grover Klemmer, who can't compete in the I. C.'s, was brought along to see the big games. He'll earn his trip a week from Saturday in the Princeton invitation meet, in the 440. Only a youngster, he's one of the nation's best, at the distance.

N.Y.U. Pins IC4A Hopes On Herbert, MacMitchell

By SAM BROGNA

New York University's hopes of landing the 64th annual I. C. 4-A track and field championship at the Harvard Stadium Friday and Saturday depend largely on Jim Herbert's performance in the 440, his anchor leg in the relay and the efforts of Les MacMitchell, star sophomore runner, in the half-mile and mile events.

This is placing a rather large task on the shoulders of these two stars for, in each of the events they are entered, they will be facing their stiffest competition ever.

BARNES FAVORED

Herbert, the Violets' captain who set a new world indoor record of 48.4s for the quarter mile at Dartmouth in March, will have a difficult time winning the 440-yard title this week. Favorite to win this event is Clarence Barnes of the University of California who twice this spring has won the quarter with a clocking of 47.9, and also ran second in 46.9 in the Pacific Coast championships last Saturday.

The 46.9 time betters the I. C. 4-A mark by one tenth of a second made by Bill Carr of Penn in 1932 and equalled the last three years by John Woodruff of Pittsburgh.

LOST TO WALLACE

Herbert's best time to date outdoors has been 48.6 in a race which he lost to Wesley Wallace of Fordham by a foot. Closing his collegiate track career in this meet, the N. Y. Negro flash who also is the I. C. 4-A 600-yard indoor champion would like nothing better than an upset victory in the 440.

Other standouts in this event are Charley O'Donnell of Holy Cross, Wallace of Fordham, who finished fifth last year, and Paul Douglas of Princeton, Ivy League hope.

The relay quartet in which Jim once again anchors, has an excellent chance to score against Pitt and Fordham in the relay race.

Les MacMitchell, another one of the many sophomore stars in this meet who's expected a lot of, has cut a difficult piece of work for himself by competing in a double event.

MUST BEAT LIGHTBODY

Although he has been installed the favorite in the mile event, which, by his past performances warrants it, he faces a harder task when he toes the mark for the half mile run. For, in the 880, he has Jim Lightbody of Harvard to beat.

He has a great chance of copping the mile run although his best time for the run this spring is 4:22.5, way below the mark of 4:11.2 set by Louis Zamperini of Southern California last year. He turned in 4:14.3 last year as a freshman. It is largely on this startling performance that he is picked to win on Saturday.

In order to win however, he will have to approximate a 4:14 mile. Captain Roy Fehr of Michigan State already has a 4:14.8 mile victory to his credit this season. Don Smith of Maine who many track experts think is equal to a 4:13 mile, will give the sophomore sensation plenty of trouble. Also, if Ted Vollmer of California who has run 4:17 this spring doubles in this event and the two mile, he will be a real contender.

ELECT CO-CAPTAINS

AMHERST, May 29 (AP) — Henry B. Prickett of Straffo d, Pa., and Thomas F. Walker of Haddonfield, N. J., today were elected co-captains of Amherst's 1941 varsity track team.

Red Sox Sign College Star

RICHMOND, Va., May 29 (AP) —Stuart Hoskins, catcher-captain of the University of Richmond's 1940 Southern Conference baseball champions, signed a contract today with the Boston Red Sox which carried a $2500 bonus.

He said he was awaiting word from Billy Evans, Red Sox farm manager, on whether to report to the Canton, Ohio, club of the Middle Atlantic League or Centerville, Md., of the Eastern Shore League. Both are Class "C" circuits.

Hoskins hit .421 during the past collegiate baseball season. He also captained the Richmond basketball team and won an All-State berth as guard on the basketball team. He also was a member of the football squad, and was regarded as one of the state's best blocking backs.

Duke 2nd Sacker Reports to A's June 2

DURHAM, N. C., May 29 (AP) Laurance Davis, star Duke University second baseman the last three seasons, has signed a contract with the Philadelphia Athletics and will report June 2.

The husky athlete was ranked by Duke officials with the best second-sakers in the university's history. He was captain of the team the last two seasons.

Heroes and Goats

HEROES—George McQuinn, St. Louis first baseman, whose two home runs in the first game drove in four runs as the Browns beat the Chicago White Sox twice; Mary Breuer, New York pitcher, who stopped the Washington Senators with seven hits and brought the Yankees their longest winning streak this season.

GOATS—Bill Zuber, Cleveland pitcher, who blew an early lead as the Detroit Tigers trimmed the Indians; Junior Thompson, Cincinnati hurler, who was shelled from the hill by the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

pitcher who would have an 80 per cent chance of winning in a critical game. It has been the history of baseball that most pennant winners have possessed one or two of this type of hurler. In the case of the Yanks, they have had Ruffing, Gomez and Pearson to send against the opposition in vital games.

Since the Wes Ferrell explosion and the downfall of Lefty Grove, Joe Cronin has lacked a sure fire pitcher.

Pitching is still at least 60 per cent the success of any ball club. You may wish to raise the percentage to 70.

Baseball Loss in Millions

THE BASEBALL loss caused by poor weather is running into the millions. Minor league clubs as well as the major league outfits have had numerous postponements.

The magnates will win back part of this money with doubleheaders, but most of it can now be charged off in the loss column. Many clubs that would draw capacity crowds at this stage of the pennant race may not do so well later in the season.

The Red Sox-Yanks double-header that was rained out last Saturday came at a time when both clubs were red hot. The Sox were in first place, while the Yanks had started their drive for the pennant. If weather conditions had been perfect on Saturday, the Sox and Yanks would have turned away thousands of fans from Fenway Park. Similar conditions would have existed on Sunday with fair weather.

There are numerous fans who purchased tickets for the Sox Sunday game who didn't use them as they supposed that the game had been called off on account of rain. The Sox management has not yet decided what to do in the case of these fans. It has been suggested that new tickets be issued for another game in exchange for those that were not used. Such a move would build additional good will for Tom Yawkey and his Red Sox.

Only Seven Races at Suffolk Downs

THERE WILL be only seven races at Suffolk Downs today. Racing Secretary Charley McLennan has been faced with difficulties in filling races on account of the long period of poor weather. The racing strip at Suffolk Downs has been thoroughly soaked by the rain, and many owners and trainers have been hesitant about starting their thoroughbreds under the adverse conditions.

There are plenty of horses at Suffolk Downs, and as track conditions improve the number of daily entries will increase. It has been an unusual Spring in the matter of weather, and racing as well as baseball has suffered.

500,000 LOST BY BELGIUM

LONDON, May 29 (AP).—The military correspondent of Reuter's (British news agency) wrote today that the Belgian army, originally 800,000 strong, had only 300,000 effectives when it surrendered—evidence of its stubborn fight against German assaults.

Here Y'are, Matey!

Drawn-faced British Tommies, fighting men faced with an almost hopeless cause, find time in advance to the Belgian front to pause and watch while a comrade feeds a young refugee, one of thousands of youthful victims of war's terror. Today, with British forces hemmed in pocket after the surrender of the Belgian army, French forces were hammering hard at the Nazi units in the Somme area in last desperate attack to save them.
